PUBLISHER'S NOTE

The design of this set is the work of Vance Weaver Composition. The typesetting was done on computer, partly to make the indexing manageable. Early on, we saw that the four huge indexes would be an invaluable tool.

But with an estimated 30,000 entries, compiling the indexes in the conventional way would prove a monumental task, and prohibitively expensive. The Weaver firm came to the rescue: they would instruct the computer to do the indexing, as a byproduct of the typesetting.

Here the services of Henry Engel, a copyeditor and indexer of wide experience, became doubly valuable. Mr. Engel has mastered the arcane language of computer symbols, and he gave priceless assistance to publisher and author in translating English into computerese, and back again.

Without the expert help of Vance Weaver Composition and Henry Engel, this set would be far less useful to the reader, less accurate, and much more expensive.

INTRODUCTION

by George T. Simon

This is really quite some tome—or better still, quite some four tomes! When publisher Neil McCaffrey first told me about this project, I thought, “Hey, what a great idea!” But not until he began showing me some of the galley proofs did I begin to appreciate what an enormous undertaking it would turn out to be.

Just like you’re about to do (or perhaps may already have started to do if, like me, you don’t begin books at their Introductions), I immediately began looking for some of my favorites—some of them not too well known—and sure enough, there they all were—singers like Dolores O’Neill and Carlotta Dale and Kathleen Lane and Henry Wells and Red McKenzie and Leo Watson and Helen Ward and June Hutton and Peggy Mann—and musicians like Johnny McAfee and Al Sears and Jimmy Crawford and Boomie Richman and Joe Wilder and so many, many more. Not only did I find their names and their biographies, but I also began recalling, thanks to Roger Kinkle’s masterful research, some of the great songs that I’d forgotten they had recorded, not to mention the labels on which they made them, and even some of the movies and other appearances that some of them had made.

I can’t get over what this Kinkle man has accomplished! That research job of his is just immense! I thought I’d worked pretty hard on my last three books—The Big Bands and Glenn Miller and His Orchestra and Simon Says: The Sights and Sounds of the Swing Era—but compared with Kinkle’s research mine began to look like little more than a two-bar break in a Joe Lippman arrangement. And who is Joe Lippman? Just look in the index and find out, though I’ve a hunch that nobody told Kinkle that Joe, besides having been a first-rate arranger, was also the second-string pianist for George Simon and His Confederates up in Cambridge, Mass., back in the thirties.

As for that index, well, that’s something else again! What gives me such special kicks is not merely perusing it for names that I bet Roger forgot about—but didn’t—but also suddenly discovering names of people that I had forgotten all about, but which he hadn’t!

That’s one of the many charms of this mammoth four-volume epic: rediscovering

Introduction

all those singers and songs and musicians and records and even movies and musicals and radio shows that had been buried somewhere too deep in the recesses of your mind and then, on top of all that, learning things about them that you never even knew in the first place.

But, of course, it's not just the surprises and fun and games that make all of this such fascinating reading. For in the long run what's even more important is the colossal wealth of material that has at last become so readily available for those of us who want to know more (and in the case of us writers often need to know more) about the entire popular and jazz music of the first half of our century. Those year-by-year reports, for example, that make up the first volume. And all those biographies of stars and near-stars and never-to-be-stars that comprise the next two volumes. And then again those indexes in the final volume with all their various cross-references, and finally all those lists and charts that make up those appendices.

One thing, though, that I think you should be aware of: This is not, nor does it purport to be, an all-encompassing resume of every person's career. Kinkle has had to use his judgment regarding what to include and what to omit, and almost all the way it has been top-notch. Sure, I quibble with him here and there on some minor inclusions and exclusions, just as I know my readers have quibbled with me about mine. But then that's always part of the fun: second-guessing us so-called "experts." And, believe me, it can lead to some wonderful rap sessions with your friends. However, keep in mind one thing: If Roger had included absolutely everything about everybody that every one of us thought he should, just about none of us could afford the money to own all those dozens of volumes, nor, I suspect, the time to read them.

For me, one of the things this encyclopedia is all about is just the fun of rummaging through it and remembering a lot of old things and finding out a lot of new things and getting together with your friends and trading bits of information—perhaps even some that doesn't appear in these volumes—and just having a ball with all those hundreds upon hundreds of evocative and provocative pages. I know I'm going to keep my copy of this encyclopedia right near by, and when I'm not using it to look up something for an article or book I might be working on, I'll probably be tempted just to browse and browse and have such a great time that I might never get around to writing another book. For which, Roger Kinkle, I shall hate you—but not as much as I love you and admire you for giving us this simply fabulous work!

June 26, 1974

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Over three years of work went into the compilation and preparation of data for this book. In view of the vast amount of material, I was fortunate to get valuable help along the way. I wish to thank the many persons who aided me.

First mention should go to Neil McCaffrey, president of Arlington House. He offered me the opportunity to write the book, which I was happy to accept. His extensive editing was most important—as were his advice, ideas and additional musical research materials. Through previous researching and indexing of his excellent record collection, Neil was able to supply listings of many hundreds of records of sidemen's jazz solos with various bands. Throughout the past three years his cooperation and understanding were very helpful and gratifying. Also at Arlington House, Rayetta Phares and Janet Boyle contributed valuable research. Some data were supplied by writers George T. Simon, John Flower and Stanley Green.

I wish to call special attention to the considerable aid given me by John J. Richards of Rocky River, Ohio. Even though preparing his own book encompassing part of the material in mine, John was most gracious and cooperative in supplying needed data on early Broadway shows and performers. His gigantic book is expected to be published later in 1974 and is tentatively titled The International Encyclopedia of Musical Comedy, Operetta and Revue (1728-1973). It will list all musical stage productions worldwide except grand opera, with in-depth information and credits.

Sharon Olson of Evansville's Central Library provided considerable data on Academy Award winners. I am grateful also to Evansville's Willard Library for the privilege of doing research in its old newspaper files.

Particularly helpful were several collectors who allowed me to research their record collections and/or supplied books and magazines for my research. These include Clifford Kincaid, Evansville, Ind.; Warren Hjerpe, St. Louis; Raffie Simonian, Park Ridge, Ill.; James Ryder, Portsmouth, N.H.; and the late Oliver Johnson, St. Louis. Furnishing abundant detail on a variety of subjects were Bruce Davidson of Nashville; John Woychek of Winona, Minn.; and Dick Scher of Chicago.

Via my record sales lists I asked my customers for information lacking on various subjects, and the response was overwhelming. Most of the people listed below contributed information in this way. My sincere apologies to anyone I may have inadvertently omitted from the list.

THE PLAN OF THE WORK

This work covers the period 1900-50 and the contributions of singers, orchestra leaders, musicians, arrangers, composers and lyricists to popular music and/or jazz. We have attempted to list all artists whose importance warranted it. Not included in the book are those artists whose national careers began after 1950 (early local and obscure activities not considered). Artists who continued their careers past 1950 have career credits brought through the 50s, 60s and into early 1974 (or whatever year their career ended). Thus the work actually spans the 20th century, merely excluding artists who rose after 1950.

Some artists did not contribute a large body of music but did contribute music important enough to warrant inclusion. Their entries are naturally not as extensive as the average entry. They include composers and lyricists who contributed some though not many popular songs, and singers who appeared in just a few productions but important ones.

If the reader believes that some important artist has been omitted from the book, he first should ask himself whether that artist's national career began by 1950, and also whether his musical credits are of sufficient importance to warrant inclusion. We have attempted to include every significant artist who belongs within the book's scope.

For research we have consulted a host of books, magazines, newspapers and record company data. In a comparatively few instances, we found conflicting data, especially on birth dates. Probably most such discrepancies are the fault of the artists themselves for giving out conflicting data. We have attempted to limit our listings to the data of which we were reasonably certain.

BROADWAY MUSICALS

Broadway shows are listed mainly according to the year in which they opened. However, in cases where an important show opened in the latter part of December and ran extensively during the following year, the show along with its hit songs is listed under the following year, the year of popularity. As an example, the musical SHOW BOAT opened December 27, 1927, had a long run and with its great score attained immense popularity—not during 1927 but rather 1928. Thus, to list the show and its songs under 1927 would be misleading. However, a notation in the proper place under 1927 guides the reader to 1928 for the show's listing.

Some shows had brief runs and no songs that attained popularity, especially during 1900-20. Shows with fewer than 15 performances are not included in these pages, although credits for them are posted to performers involved. Some shows, though successful, had scores which attained no popularity. These scores are not listed under their shows, only songs having some importance.

Especially in the early years, in addition to the regular score many shows featured extra songs by different composers and sometimes interpolated old songs. During a long run shows sometimes added songs later in the run. We have noted such important songs under Additional Songs in the musical listings.

MOVIE MUSICALS

The most important movie musicals are listed for each year beginning with 1929, the first big year for sound films. Not all films listed are true musicals; some are comedies or dramas which featured important musical interludes or songs.

POPULAR SONGS FOR EACH YEAR

The year under which a song is listed is not necessarily the year of its copyright but rather the year of its popularity. We use this method of listing in order to present a more accurate picture of the musical scene. Many songs were copyrighted in the last month or two of a year but did not reach popularity until several months into the following year.

Good examples of this are Star Dust and The Music Goes 'Round and Around. Star Dust was written in the 20s and recorded in 1927 but attained no popularity. It emerged in early 1931 to become a hit, so 1931 is the year under which it is listed. The Music Goes 'Round and Around was a fantastic novelty hit. It began to catch on in the last week of 1935, but it was in the first two or three weeks of January 1936 that the song reached its peak. Therefore, we list it under 1936.

Where it is difficult to determine in which year a song was most popular, we list the song in the year of its appearance.

Not all songs shown in the score of a stage show or movie are listed under the Popular Songs of the Year section, just the more important ones.

Each composer and lyricist is given credit in his biography for songs he contributed to stage shows and movies, and of course for all his other important songs. But we have made no attempt to include all his unimportant songs, of which most composers wrote dozens.

COMPOSERS AND LYRICISTS

Credits for song listings for each year are shown in two ways:

- (1) Where the distinction between composer and lyricist is definitely known; examples:

Star Dust (Hoagy Carmichael-cm; Mitchell Parish-lyr)

More Than You Know (Vincent Youmans-cm; Billy Rose, Edward Eliscu-lyr)

- (2) Where the song is written by two persons, each with talents as both composer and lyricist, whose work is so interlocked as to preclude definitive distinction; or, where several writers are involved and a distinction cannot be made; examples:

The Oregon Trail (Peter DeRose, Billy Hill)

Alone at a Table for Two (Ted Fio Rito, Billy Hill, Daniel Richman)

By My Side (Bert Lown, Chauncey Gray, Harry Link, Dorothy Dick)

BIOGRAPHIES

The bulk of this section covers artists in jazz or popular music. We have not attempted exhaustive coverage of classical, blues, or country and western music, each an extensive subject in itself. However, we have included some artists in these areas under the following conditions:

Classical

Those singers who bridged the gap to light semi-classical music, show tunes or popular songs, and who were popular with the general public through radio, stage or movie musicals.

Blues

Those singers who are regarded as the outstanding artists and who had extensive recording careers.

Country and Western

The pioneers, the most popular in later years, and those who had extensive recording careers.

RECORDS

Where applicable, this headline appears after an artist's biographical data, followed by a list of recordings. This list is not his entire output but rather a representative listing to show some of his best work, his most popular work, his typical work; and to indicate the scope of his recording through the years and, where applicable, changes in style.

For vocalists with various bands, records listed are those on which they sing. For bandleaders, records listed are the band's typical, most popular or best work; if the bandleader sings or plays an instrument, he does not necessarily perform on all of his band records listed. For sidemen, we have attempted to list typical records on which they solo or play important lead, or records on which they perform in combos. Representative records of rhythm players (drummers, bassists, sometimes guitarists) usually feature their section work rather than their solos.

The Plan of the Work

Starting with 1909, when the developing record industry began to record popular songs, we list representative recordings for each year. Starting with 1917, we divide the listing into two groups, Popular and Jazz (though often the two categories overlap). In most cases the songs on these records will dovetail with the year under which they are shown in the Popular Songs listings. In some instances, however, they vary one year because the recordings were made or released either before or after the song's year of popularity. In many instances, of course, a recording will feature a revived song written years before.

Close to 40,000 records are listed in this book, most of them not currently in the record catalogs. Yet readers need not despair of finding them. Most can be found sooner or later, and an Appendix deals with record collecting and explains how old records can be found either in collectors' sales lists or in second-hand stores.

78 rpm records listed herein are 10" unless designated (12"). LPs (33-1/3 rpm) listed are 12" unless designated (10"), and LPs are MONAURAL unless designated (S) for STEREO. Where only one side of a record is listed, this means either that only one side is of interest or that the artist appears only on that side.

ALPHABETICAL ORDER

Each year's listings of Broadway Musicals, Popular Songs and Movie Musicals are in alphabetical order. Likewise, each year's listing of Representative Recordings is in alphabetical order according to artist.

In Volume 4 is an INDEX for each of the work's four major categories: Broadway Musicals, Movie Musicals, Popular Songs, Artists.

DUPLICATE SONG TITLES

Through the years numerous titles have been duplicated. This can be confusing. In tracking down such a song, the reader must check the songwriters, the year, or possibly the show or film in which it appeared. Prime examples of song title duplication:

Soon—(1930; by George Gershwin-Ira Gershwin)

(1935; by Richard Rodgers-Lorenz Hart)

Rain—(1927; by Eugene Ford-Carey Morgan-Arthur Swanstrom)

(1934; by Peter DeRose-Billy Hill)

Thinking of You—(1926; by Walter Donaldson-Paul Ash; Kay Kyser theme)

(1927; by Harry Ruby-Bert Kalmar)

I'm Yours—(1930; by Johnny Green-E. Y. Harburg)

(1952; by Robert Mellin)

Song of Surrender—(1934; by Harry Warren-Al Dubin)

(1949; by Victor Young-Jay Livingston-Ray Evans)

The King's Horses (And the King's Men)—1930 song by Noel Gay-Harry Graham—not to be confused with 1930 song All the Kings Horses by Alec Wilder-Howard Dietz-Edward Brandt

Ebb Tide—(1937; by Ralph Rainger-Leo Robin)

(1953; by Robert Maxwell-Carl Sigman)

Maybe—(1926; by George Gershwin-Ira Gershwin)

(1940; by Allan Flynn-Frank Madden)

There Goes That Song Again—(1941; by Allie Wrubel)

(1944; by Jule Styne-Sammy Cahn)

Love Is Where You Find It—(1938; by Harry Warren-Al Dubin-Johnny Mercer)

(1948; by Nacio Herb Brown-Earl K. Brent)

In addition, many obscure songs in stage scores are duplicate titles of more popular songs.

ERRORS

In a work of this scope, errors are inevitable. We hope ours will be minimal, an infinitesimal percentage of the data here. We solicit letters pointing out significant corrections or additions and will incorporate them in future revised editions, with full credit to everyone who sends information. It might be well to reiterate several points which rule out many a fancied error:

- 1) Two or more songs sometimes have the same title.
- 2) Songs are listed by year of popularity rather than by copyright year.
- 3) Artists whose careers had not emerged nationally by 1950 are excluded.
- 4) Records listed for an artist are a representative group, not the artist's entire output.
- 5) Records are listed under the year of issue (except when issued at the end of a year, when they are listed under the following year). Records are not listed by recording date.
- 6) Records are not listed under every label or every issue, but usually under the original 78 issue.

We sincerely hope this work fills a gap in your musical reference library. It can be even more valuable in the future if you will help by letting us know of any corrections or omissions you come upon.

FIFTY YEARS OF POPULAR MUSIC AND JAZZ

A Brief Overview

MUSICAL STAGE IN THE EARLY YEARS

Prior to 1900 many foreign operettas had been brought to the U.S. with considerable success. By 1900, however, important U.S. composers and shows had emerged, and from that point on the imports were at a minimum. The dominant figure in the development of the early American theatre was composer Victor Herbert. His shows were in the operetta style and included such big favorites as BABES IN TOYLAND, MLLE. MODISTE, THE RED MILL, NAUGHTY MARIETTA and SWEETHEARTS, each with great and enduring songs.

A few years later composers Rudolf Friml and Sigmund Romberg came upon the scene with their operettas and remained foremost figures for many years. George M. Cohan was another important early composer, his shows written in a different style. His songs were lusty patriotic or sentimental ones.

In spite of the greatness of these composers, each turned out a number of short-run shows and songs that attained no popularity. In fact, a characteristic of the musical stage in this early period was the short runs. The shows each year were numerous, with simple and naive titles and plots, and most of them yielded mediocre songs. In addition to Herbert's shows, the outstanding early long-running shows were FLORODORA, FIDDLE DEE DEE, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY AND THE BEAST, A CHINESE HONEYMOON, TWIRLY WHIRLY, THE WIZARD OF OZ, PIFF! PAFF!! POUF!!!, FANTANA, A SOCIETY CIRCUS, THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER, THE MERRY WIDOW, THREE TWINS, THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER and HAVANA.

Other leading composers with varying styles in this period were Gustav Luders, Franz Lehar, A. Baldwin Sloane, Reginald de Koven, Ludwig Englander, Jean Schwartz, Ivan Caryll, Raymond Hubbell and Gustav Kerker. Most of the song hits of the early years were provided by composers independently of the musical stage, written merely for the enjoyment of the general public. Writing in this category were important composers such as Harry Von Tilzer, Albert Von Tilzer, Paul Dresser, Gus Edwards, Fred Fisher, Ernest R. Ball (specializing in Irish songs), J. Rosamond Johnson, Jean Schwartz and Theodore F. Morse.

Fifty Years of Popular Music and Jazz

THE LEADING STARS OF THE EARLY YEARS

The principal means of popularizing a song in those days was through the sale of sheet music, aided by the performances of entertainers throughout the nation.

Stars of the early years of musical theatre (pre-1920):

Singers Fritzi Scheff, Christie MacDonald, Lulu Glaser, Louise Gunning, Lillian Russell, Vera Michelena, Ethel Jackson, Lina Abarbanell, Anna Held, Elsie Janis, Nora Bayes & Jack Norworth, Fay Templeton, Marie Cahill, The Four Cohans, Blanche Ring, Julia Sanderson, Hazel Dawn, Donald Brian, Peggy Wood.

Comedians-singers Richard Carle, Eddie Foy, Raymond Hitchcock, DeWolf Hopper, Joseph Cawthorn, Jefferson de Angelis, Victor Moore, Weber & Fields, Montgomery & Stone, Otis Harlan, Sam Bernard, Bert Williams, comedienne (and sometimes singer) Marie Dressler. Irene & Vernon Castle, dance team, became stars and created several popular dances.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS

The development of the phonograph record industry was a great boon to the entertainment world and became a big factor in the popularizing of songs. First efforts in this medium entailed the use of cylinders, which proved impractical. Columbia and Edison were early companies, joined in 1901 by Victor, and these three became the most important companies in the development of records. Other companies formed a decade or so later.

After cylinders came the standard type of 78-rpm record used during all the years following till about 1950. Early records utilized an acoustical process of recording which left much to be desired because of its poor fidelity and volume. The early records featured band marches, string ensembles, instrumental solos, comedy and novelty songs and dialogues, and opera singers performing operatic and semi-classical airs. By 1909 the companies began to record the popular songs of the day by well-known entertainers. The first electrical records appeared in the mid-20s on a small scale, and by the late 20s most companies had converted to the far superior electrical process.

THE MUSICAL EXTRAVAGANZAS

In 1907 appeared the first ZIEGFELD FOLLIES stage show, forerunner of many such shows through the 20s and early 30s. Similar series were started in 1919 titled GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS and GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES. The EARL CARROLL'S VANITIES series started in 1923, and there were many others. These shows followed much the same pattern through the years, using a large cast and a bevy of beautiful chorus girls, sometimes featuring a special beauty. There was an abundance of songs, dances, comics and skits, with star performers heading the cast. Production numbers often were based on current events or fads, and many were lavishly presented. Songs were furnished by various composers and lyricists, though many songs in each show were lightweight and seldom achieved any popularity. Later the song production improved and a number of

Fifty Years of Popular Music and Jazz

hit songs emerged from these extravaganzas. Star performers in such revues were Nora Bayes & Jack Norworth, Ed Wynn, Bert Williams, Leon Errol, Ann Pennington, W.C. Fields, Will Rogers, Fanny Brice, the Dolly Sisters, Eddie Cantor and Lou Holtz. Leading composers for this type of show were the Dave Stamper & Gene Buck team, Raymond Hubbell, Irving Berlin, Louis A. Hirsch and George Gershwin.

VAUDEVILLE

Although vaudeville had been in existence for many years, it peaked about 1912 and stayed popular for another decade and more. Headliners included Sarah Bernhardt, Harry Houdini, Lulu Glaser, Willie & Eugene Howard, Lillian Russell, Eva Tanguay, Fred & Adele Astaire, Sophie Tucker, Adele Ritchie, Belle Baker, Joe Welch, Trixie Friganza, Elizabeth Murray, Laddie Cliff, Alice Lloyd, Kathleen Clifford and Rae Samuels. Star performers from the musical stage would play vaudeville in their off weeks. New York's Palace Theatre became the ultimate goal for vaudeville performers, and it operated from 1913 to 1932 as a straight vaudeville house.

ASCAP (AMERICAN SOCIETY OF COMPOSERS, AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS)

In 1914 a small group of composers, led by Victor Herbert, united to protect members' rights to their songs and to empower them to collect fees for the performance of those songs. Leaders in the formation of ASCAP were composers Herbert, Silvio Hein, Gustav Kerker, Raymond Hubbell, Louis A. Hirsch, lyricist Glen MacDonough, publishers George Maxwell and Jay Witmark, and attorney Nathan Burkan, with George Maxwell as the first president. A presentation finally was made to the Supreme Court before Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, and he ruled that a song was property, a product of the heart and brain.

It took years to acquaint theatres, dance halls, hotels and clubs with the purpose of ASCAP and to set up procedures to reimburse ASCAP members for performance of their songs. Many cases had to be tried in the courts to establish these rights. Later radio, records and television also had to pay royalties.

WORLD WAR I

In the period immediately preceding and during World War I, the entertainment industry kept going strong. Many entertainers performed for the men in the armed forces and for bond drives. There was a rash of patriotic songs, with George M. Cohan's stirring Over There heading the list. Other war songs of note were We're Going Over; Goodbye Broadway, Hello France; When the Boys Come Home; Where Do We Go from Here?; Hello, Central, Give Me No Man's Land; Hinky Dinky Parlez Vous; Rose of No Man's Land; My Belgian Rose; Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning; and the poignant Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight. How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm? was a postwar novelty hit.

Fifty Years of Popular Music and Jazz

DEVELOPMENT OF THE MUSICAL THEATRE

In the 20s a new type of stage musical was launched. Victor Herbert had died and George M. Cohan was less active. Sigmund Romberg and Rudolf Friml were still busy in the theatre, but the operetta-style musical had lost popularity. Shows on Broadway had better, more modern story lines, and on the whole the musical scores improved greatly. Coming to the fore were talented composers like George Gershwin, Jerome Kern, Arthur Schwartz, Vincent Youmans and Richard Rodgers. The composing team of Ray Henderson, Buddy DeSylva and Lew Brown captured the spirit of the Roaring Twenties perhaps better than any others. Another composing giant was Irving Berlin, who earned recognition with the ZIEGFELD FOLLIES, although most of his hits were written independently of the stage. The songs coming out of the stage shows of the 20s were excellent and numerous.

Leading stars of these musicals were Louise Groody, Frank Tinney, Al Jolson, Ethelind Terry, Ed Wynn, Marilyn Miller, Julia Sanderson, Eddie Dowling, Willie & Eugene Howard, Peggy Wood, Frank Fay, Edith Day, Guy Robertson, Eddie Cantor, Fred & Adele Astaire, Elizabeth Hines, Dennis King, the Marx Brothers, Jack Donahue, Fred Stone, Hazel Dawn, Mary Lawlor, Helen Morgan, and English imports Gertrude Lawrence and Beatrice Lillie.

EMERGENCE OF JAZZ

The roots of jazz took hold decades before. Jazz in something like its later form began to emerge about 1890. By 1900 it was being played in New Orleans. Leading early jazzmen were Buddy Bolden and Bunk Johnson, followed by King Oliver and Louis Armstrong. Small jazz groups played for street parades and funerals, in brothels and dance halls. Many future jazz greats were spawned in New Orleans in the formative years.

Jazz bands began to play on riverboats up and down the Mississippi, stopping to play at river towns and spreading the sound. Bands moved to Chicago in the postwar era. That city became a mecca for jazzmen from all points, a wild and lively place during Prohibition.

The Original Dixieland Jazz Band did much to popularize jazz (sometimes spelled "jass" in the early days). This closely integrated group grew up in New Orleans, formed in Chicago and rose to greater fame in New York. Led by the ODJB, by 1917 jazz began to be recorded to some extent. The output gradually increased in the following years. By the mid-20s jazz and blues records were plentiful. Jazz still had a comparatively small following, though, as sweet music dominated until the mid-30s.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE DANCE BAND

In the early years the groups playing dance music were string ensembles, string-dominated large orchestras, or large march-style bands using arrangements and instrumentation dating back many years. Around 1915 the style, voicing and instrumentation of the dance band were undergoing changes to fit the new popular songs and to present them in a more danceable manner. An early pioneer in this styling was bandleader Art Hickman. Other pioneers in the dance-orchestra field were Joseph C. Smith, Sam Lanin, Ted Lewis, Paul Whiteman and Isham Jones. The standard instrumentation for a dance band became three saxaphones, three or four brass (trumpets and trombones), piano, tuba, drums, banjo or guitar, and usually a violin or two.

By the early and mid-20s, other leading dance bands were those of Ben Bernie, Russo-Fio Rito (later split into the bands of Danny Russo and Ted Fio Rito), Garber-Davis (later split into the bands of Jan Garber and Milton Davis), Vincent Lopez, Abe Lyman, George Olsen, Ben Pollack, Gene Rodemich, the California Ramblers, Jean Goldkette, Roger Wolfe Kahn, Ray Miller, Carl Fenton, Paul Specht, Bennie Krueger, Fred Waring, Ben Selvin and Leo Reisman.

Joining these in the late 20s and early 30s were the bands of Gus Arnheim, Don Bestor, Henry Busse, Coon-Sanders, Earl Burtnett, Bernie Cummins, Jimmie Grier, Wayne King, Guy Lombardo, Rudy Vallee, Bert Lown, Will Osborne, Peter Van Steeden, Hal Kemp, Glen Gray, Anson Weeks, Ted Weems, Arden-Ohman and Nat Shilkret.

Most of these bands continued into the middle and late 30s, joined by the bands of Shep Fields, Blue Barron, Del Courtney, Eddy Duchin, Phil Harris, Horace Heidt, Woody Herman, Dick Jurgens, Sammy Kaye, Kay Kyser, Henry King, Freddy Martin, Frankie Masters, Russ Morgan, Ozzie Nelson, Joe Reichman, Jan Savitt, Orrin Tucker, Tommy Tucker, Lawrence Welk, George Hall, Richard Himber, Al Donahue, Dick Stabile (and the swing bands mentioned elsewhere in this article).

These bands featured sweet music, with excellent musicianship and showmanship. They were entertaining. They performed well whether on records or at college proms, dance halls, night clubs and theatres. Most of the bands maintained a fairly steady personnel during their years of prominence, and their featured singers were often as well known and popular as the bands themselves. The public became aware of the various bands' theme songs as well.

The years of the middle and late 30s and early 40s were later referred to as the Big Band Era.

RADIO—A GREAT ENTERTAINMENT MEDIUM

After several years of pioneering, radio became available to the general public on a limited scale in 1922. The first radios were crystal sets with earphones, with only one person at a time able to listen. By the mid-20s radio had improved considerably with the development of electrical sets that needed no earphones and placed no limit on the size of the audience. Local stations provided their own entertainment with local talent. But a large segment of time was devoted to playing records over the air. This enhanced the popularity of the stars and songs involved, and also popularized songs from the current musical stage and thus helped the shows. Radio fans of the early days enjoyed switching the dial from station to station all evening long to see how many stations (and how far distant) they could tune in on their radios. The Coon-Sanders band became a midwest sensation thanks to its late-night broadcasts from Kansas City.

The first nationwide network was formed in late 1926, the National Broadcasting Company (NBC). The Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS) followed in 1929. They have remained the dominant networks through the years, though joined later by smaller ones (and the same held true later in television). With the development of the two networks in 1929-30, the entertainment quality of radio improved quickly. Well-established stars appeared on network shows and became even more popular, as both hosts and guest stars. Popular stars of early network radio were B. A. Rolfe & His Lucky Strike Orchestra, announcer Graham MacNamee, band-leader-singer Rudy Vallee, Jones & Hare (The Interwoven Pair), and Amos 'n' Andy. This comedy team enjoyed phenomenal popularity in 1930 and for the next several years with its 15-minute show several nights a week. Radio had a great impact on the public and its way of life in the 30s.

In the early 30s other radio stars emerged such as Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, Will Rogers, Fred Allen, Kate Smith, Bing Crosby, Ed Wynn, Lanny Ross, Joe Penner, Fanny Brice, Frank Munn, Jessica Dragonette and James Melton. Sports-caster Ted Husing was the king in his field all through the 30s. Rudy Vallee emceed a top-rated show through most of the 30s. Also popular were the bands of Guy Lombardo, Paul Whiteman, Fred Waring, Wayne King and Ben Bernie on network shows. The music of name bands all over the country could be heard on "remote" broadcasts from dance spots in the late hours of the evening.

In 1935 Lucky Strike began its long-running Hit Parade show, also known as Your Hit Parade. Through a canvass of sheet music and record sales, radio performances and bandleaders' reports, each week's top popular songs were played every Saturday night. This show ran on radio through the 40s, then switched to TV until the late 50s.

The Major Bowes Amateur Hour enjoyed great popularity for several years, especially in 1936. By the mid-30s a new wave of radio stars included Burns & Allen, Fibber McGee & Molly, Lum 'n' Abner and Dick Powell. They were joined in the later 30s by Edgar Bergen, Bob Hope and the musical shows of bandleaders Benny Goodman, Kay Kyser, Tommy Dorsey, Hal Kemp and Phil Spitalny & His All-Girl Orchestra.

In 1940 Glenn Miller became the leading bandleader and was sponsored by Chesterfield on a popular radio series. Leading shows of the early 40s were those of Garry Moore-Jimmy Durante, Red Skelton, and Ed Gardner in Duffy's Tavern.

In the late 40s Milton Berle became a top star. His radio show was also carried on early television, which earned him the title of Mr. Television as TV's first big star.

EARLY SOUND MOVIES

An exciting period in the history of entertainment was the motion picture industry in transition from silent to sound movies. In late 1927 Al Jolson starred in the first talking picture (only partly sound) titled THE JAZZ SINGER, and the movie created a sensation. The sound process was developed further during 1928, with 1929 as the year when sound movies arrived. Many theatre owners were reluctant to install the expensive sound equipment in their theatres until they were sure the "fad" would last, and silent movies were still being made in 1929 and early 1930.

In late 1929 a flurry of movie musicals came out of Hollywood. The success of some of these (BROADWAY MELODY, FOX MOVIE TONE FOLLIES OF 1929, HOLLYWOOD REVUE OF 1929, THE DESERT SONG, THE LOVE PARADE, RIO RITA, SUNNY SIDE UP, INNOCENTS OF PARIS) prompted another large group of musicals during 1930.

These early musicals were mostly concerned with life on Broadway, performers trying to get their big break, or comedies about college life—just flimsy plots used as a means of presenting song and dance numbers. Song writers kept busy supplying the new songs needed, and they turned out mediocre as well as good songs. Radio and records helped the popularity of the songs and the movies. Among the top performers in the early movie musicals were Jack Oakie, John Boles, Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, the Janet Gaynor-Charlie Farrell team, Cliff Edwards, Nancy Carroll, Betty Compson, Winnie Lightner, Warner Baxter, Lawrence Tibbett, Alexander Gray and Wheeler & Woolsey.

Since few silent movie stars had the ability to sing or dance in the new musicals, the movie industry had to draw on veteran vaudeville, night club and stage performers. Newcomers were also used, and many made their way to Hollywood seeking their big break. Variety short subjects of 15-minute length were produced in great gobs, and provided more work for these performers. With so many musicals in production, there was a great demand for chorus girls. Stars of the musical stage also starred in movie musicals, some of which were adapted from the stage but added original scores. Some of the top dance bands appeared in films, several with stories built around them.

This was the beginning of the end for vaudeville. Films were a boon at first, with performers doing both live and movie work. Movie houses continued to carry vaudeville along with the new sound movies for awhile, until it became apparent that the talkies were novel and entertaining enough to stand on their own. Then too, the Great Depression settled in, hastening the demise of vaudeville. To make the situation rougher for musical performers, in 1931 and 1932 the movie industry turned to dramas and comedies and these two years were lean ones for musicals. However, musicals came back in 1933 to become established as a permanent part of the industry.

DEPRESSION YEARS AND THE MUSICAL THEATRE

Radio and movies thrived even during the darkest days of the Depression in the early 30s, and continued throughout the 30s. However, the musical theatre suffered badly in these years, probably because the public could ill afford the theatre's higher prices when it could get such cheap and excellent entertainment from the other media.

Fifty Years of Popular Music and Jazz

Stage shows in the 30s became rather sparse, and many died young. Some legitimate theatres were converted into movie houses, and a few were razed. Two exceptionally long-running shows in this decade were PINS AND NEEDLES and HELLZAPOPPIN'. The quality of show songs remained excellent, however, with contributions by such composers as George Gershwin, Richard Rodgers, Jerome Kern, Cole Porter, Arthur Schwartz, Kurt Weill, Irving Berlin, Harold Arlen, Harold Rome, Burton Lane, and the new team of Frederick Loewe & Alan Jay Lerner.

Musical stage stars of the 30s included Bert Lahr, Willie & Eugene Howard, Ethel Merman, Clifton Webb, Libby Holman, Victor Moore, William Gaxton, Beatrice Lillie, Fred Astaire, Jack Haley, Jimmy Durante and Ed Wynn.

POPULARITY OF MOVIE MUSICALS

In 1933 the movie 42nd STREET, introducing a sensational new team of Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler, was a tremendous hit and sparked a revival of movie musicals. Throughout the rest of the 30s this type of movie flourished. Hollywood launched song after hit song, and most of the leading composers contributed.

Starring in these great musicals were Bing Crosby, Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Alice Faye, the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers team, Shirley Temple, Deanna Durbin, Sonja Henie, Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope and Judy Garland. Walt Disney pioneered the full-length cartoon and featured good scores in most of them.

Composing teams became the hallmark of the movie musical. The better ones included Harry Warren-Al Dubin, Harry Revel-Mack Gordon, Sammy Fain-Irving Kahal, Lew Pollack-Sidney D. Mitchell, Nacio Herb Brown-Arthur Freed, Allie Wrubel-Mort Dixon, George Gershwin-Ira Gershwin, James V. Monaco-Johnny Burke, Richard Whiting-Johnny Mercer, Harold Arlen-E. Y. Harburg, Ralph Rainger-Leo Robin and Richard Rodgers-Lorenz Hart. Independents Irving Berlin and Cole Porter added luster. Walter Donaldson, Jimmy McHugh, Arthur Johnston and Jerome Kern each used several different lyricists.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy starred in a series of costume musicals, operetta-style, mostly remakes of stage plays that featured the original scores.

New stars were added in the movie musicals of the 40s: Betty Grable, John Payne, Mary Martin, Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, Dennis Morgan, Kathryn Grayson, Gloria DeHaven, June Allyson, Betty Hutton, Dick Haymes, June Haver, Jane Powell, Frank Sinatra, Danny Kaye. Important new composing teams were Jimmy Van Heusen-Johnny Burke, Gene DePaul-Don Raye, Josef Myrow-Mack Gordon, Jule Styne-Sammy Cahn and Hugh Martin-Ralph Blane. Lyricists Johnny Mercer and Frank Loesser worked with several different composers.

1936, THE YEAR OF SWING

Although jazz bands were performing in the 20s and early 30s, they had a comparatively small following. Through their records, jazzmen Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Cab Calloway, Earl Hines, Fats Waller and a few others had attracted some attention. However, the general public cared little about jazz, and sweet music dominated records and radio. But in late 1935 and early 1936, hot music somehow began to grow in popular favor. In the early months of 1936 everyone was talking about swing music (the term pertaining mostly to large dance bands playing ballads or instrumentals in a swinging, jazzy manner). Radio gave swing publicity and helped popularize it.

Possibly it was Benny Goodman who laid the groundwork for the upsurge of hot music with his broadcasts on the shortlived Let's Dance radio show of late 1934-early 1935, his records in ensuing months, and his tremendous reception at the Palomar Ballroom in Los Angeles in the late summer and fall of 1935. Goodman's title, the King of Swing, fit. He quickly soared to the number-one spot.

The emergence of swing also made the public conscious of good bands that had been around awhile without as much recognition: Fletcher Henderson, Duke Ellington, Chick Webb, Andy Kirk, Tommy Dorsey, Jimmy Dorsey, Glen Gray, Earl Hines and Jimmie Lunceford; and later Artie Shaw, Larry Clinton, Charlie Barnet, Bob Crosby, Count Basie, Red Norvo and Bunny Berigan.

During the swing craze there were also small jazz groups that played happy and uninhibited music at jazz joints, notably the combos of Stuff Smith, Wingy Manone, Fats Waller, Red McKenzie, Eddie Condon and Joe Marsala.

The well-orchestrated swing bands with their outstanding jazz soloists dramatically improved the quality of music from this point on. Of course the sweet bands played on, maintaining a hold on the public's fancy. Their arrangements and performances also improved over the years.

The year 1936 is also noteworthy for the fantastically successful hit song, The Music Goes 'Round and Around. In the early weeks of the year it enjoyed a flash of popularity that no song ever equalled before, or has since.

ASCAP BAN

On January 1, 1941, ASCAP banned its music from radio, seeking in its contract renewal higher remuneration for the performances of its songs. The radio networks balked at this and the ASCAP ban lasted until late 1941, when both sides compromised and a new contract was signed.

In the meantime, an association of young, practically unknown songwriters emerged. Known as Broadcast Music, Inc. (BMI), its songs were used extensively during the ban. This established the careers of many new songwriters, and BMI continued and grew.

During the ban performers also relied heavily on non-ASCAP "public domain" songs for radio broadcasts. The old Stephen Foster warhorse, I Dream of Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair, was heard too often for comfort.

WORLD WAR II

After the U.S. entered World War II in late 1941, the Depression was forgotten with the advent of wartime prosperity. Defense workers putting in long hours and earning high wages were looking for entertainment. Stage and screen were glad to provide it.

Fifty Years of Popular Music and Jazz

In the 40s the stage still did not offer many shows, but some had fabulous runs. The theatre received a great boost in 1943 with the sensational success of OKLAHOMA!, which marked the beginning of the Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein II collaboration that was to produce so many hits.

Other composers of the 40s and 50s who boasted many songs and stage successes were Cole Porter, Irving Berlin, Harold Arlen, Kurt Weill, Harold Rome, Loewe-Lerner and Burton Lane. Stars of the musical theatre in the 40s included Ethel Merman, Victor Moore, William Gaxton, Gertrude Lawrence, Danny Kaye, Ray Bolger, Alfred Drake, Mary Martin, Joan Roberts, John Raitt, Jan Clayton, Bobby Clark, Beatrice Lillie and Nanette Fabray.

Wartime brought its rash of war songs, especially in the first year or two. The best of them included 'Til Reveille, The Last Time I Saw Paris, The White Cliffs of Dover, He Wears a Pair of Silver Wings, Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There, Wonder When My Baby's Coming Home, I Left My Heart at the Stage Door Canteen, This Is the Army, Mr. Jones, Keep 'Em Flying, This Is Worth Fighting For, They're Either Too Young or Too Old, and When the Lights Go On Again.

Movies boomed during the war years. One characteristic film of the period was the B musical, which played second spot on double-feature bills. These unpretentious movies were hastily made, had lightweight plots, and threw together various combinations of performers such as Jane Frazee, Johnny Downs, Ann Miller, Donald O'Connor, Peggy Ryan, the Andrews Sisters, Judy Canova, Frances Langford, Constance Moore, Leon Errol, Grace MacDonald, Gloria Jean, Johnnie Johnston and often a name band and/or singer. These movies were entertaining, however, and sometimes produced a good song or two among the mediocre ones.

WARTIME SHELLAC DRIVE

Because of the raw-material shortages in World War II, the record industry in the early 40s launched a drive to get the public to turn in old records to designated collecting points for melting and reuse by the record companies in producing new records. In view of the many mediocre records produced in these years, this was a poor exchange indeed for the discriminating music lover. The shellac drive destroyed thousands upon thousands of excellent old records, making many of them rarities. Fortunately, many people held on to their old records and some opportunists salvaged many of the better records for their own use.

RECORDING BAN

With the Depression and the surge of radio, the record industry slumped badly in the early 30s. When the swing era hit, records bounced back and grew with it. Business was booming in the early 40s. But a ban that staggered the music industry began on August 1, 1942, when President James C. Petrillo and his American Federation of Musicians went on strike against the record companies. This ban lasted until September 18, 1943, when an acceptable pact was drawn up with all the record companies except Victor and Columbia, which did not come to terms until November 1944. During the ban no musicians could record, and outstanding young bands went unrecorded at their peak (the war years constantly causing changes in personnel due to the draft). Singers could record, however, and Frank Sinatra, Dick Haymes, Bing Crosby and Dinah Shore made records using vocal ensembles as background. The musical results were not satisfactory, and this practice was dropped as soon as the ban ended.

The ban did prove to be an aid to jazz record collectors, as the record companies reissued a number of good jazz records from their catalog. Two of these reissues were hits on the juke boxes and achieved a popularity far greater than when originally released: Tommy Dorsey's Boogie Woogie and Artie Shaw's coupling of Cross Your Heart and Summit Ridge Drive. The old song, As Time Goes By, enjoyed a revival in 1943 when it was featured in the movie CASABLANCA. Due to the ban, two reissues of the song were made of its original 1931 recordings by Rudy Vallee and Jacques Renard.

DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN JAZZ

A new sound and style came into the jazz field in the 40s. It was first called rebop or bebop, then just bop. In later years it was referred to as modern or progressive jazz. The new style had advanced harmonics and arranging, with unorthodox melody lines, and its rhythm veered away from the steady four-beat style to give bass drum accents off the beat as well.

The most important proving ground in the formulation of this new jazz was at Minton's night club in Harlem in the early 40s. The club was managed by former bandleader Teddy Hill, who encouraged top musicians to stop there for late-hour jam sessions. Altoist Charlie Parker had been experimenting with new ideas while with the Jay McShann band. At Minton's his experimentations fit in with those of trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie, guitarist Charlie Christian, pianist Thelonious Monk, drummer Kenny Clarke, and others. It should be noted that tenor sax star Lester Young had laid the groundwork for modern jazz with his cool tone and clean-cut solo lines while performing with the Count Basie band in the late 30s and part of 1940. Also fitting into the new jazz pattern was the block-chord or locked-hands piano style developed by Milt Buckner and Phil Moore and later popularized by George Shearing.

Big bands were not as flexible as the hard-swinging small bop combos, but they made use of the new style in the harmonics, voicing, melody line and rhythm of their arrangements, and in the solo work of their star jazzmen. Bandleaders pioneering the new style included Stan Kenton, Woody Herman, Boyd Raeburn and Billy Eckstine.

By 1944 bop had surfaced. The public became aware of it. It stirred controversy in the 40s; many music fans and musicians rejected it. But gradually bop became a permanent part of the music scene. Its fresh ideas were absorbed into the mainstream, and they helped jazz to broaden and grow.

Fifty Years of Popular Music and Jazz

POSTWAR MUSIC

The vintage years for popular songs were from the mid-20s through 1940. Beginning with 1941, the quality fell off. More and more novelty songs and trivial tunes poured out. The number of new popular songs sank to its ebb in 1943-4, probably an effect of the recording ban.

At the end of World War II, the record business was booming. The boom, however, wore a new look. The singers had become more important. The bands were secondary. The industry was growing into a big business again, and everyone tried for the big hit. New record companies sprang up by the dozens in the late 40s, some sustained by a quick hit or new singing sensation, others soon going out of business.

The quality of the postwar songs deteriorated. All kinds of novelty songs, robust and raucous songs, and tearjerkers at funeral-dirge tempo all flooded the market. Any hit would prompt a host of imitations. Classical themes were dusted off and set to lyrics, but most of these efforts were shoddy. New names appeared as record companies sought to discover the new star who would challenge the big names. Some of them were good singers, but most failed to connect with that elusive hit record.

DEMISE OF THE BIG BANDS, AND THE END OF AN ERA

The postwar period, dominated as it was by the singers, saw the drawing power of the big bands drain away. Bop, mostly played by small combos, helped crowd out the big bands. Leaders of the prewar days found it difficult to maintain the popularity they once had known. By the late 40s and early 50s, many had fallen into obscurity or had dropped out of the entertainment business entirely.

This marked the end of what has since been termed the Big Band Era. It also marked the end of a great half-century of music, years filled with enduring songs, great performances, talented artists. The musical achievements of this period wrote a glowing chapter in American music. The highlights are recorded here, and organized for the first time in permanent form.

REPRESENTATIVE RECORDINGS

(Since recordings of preceding years were predominately those of singers, the word "orchestra" was used to distinguish between recordings of a singer and an orchestra. With this and ensuing years, orchestral recordings became more numerous and soon exceeded those of singers. Therefore, the designation "orchestra" has been dropped, except in cases where the word is an integral part of the group's title.)

Roger D. Kinkle

Introduction by George T. Simon

This four-volume set is the definitive data bank on American popular music and jazz. No other work compares to it for depth and range of information on popular music and jazz in film, on records, in radio and TV, on Broadway and in vaudeville. And no other work integrates the two principal streams in American music, popular and jazz—and documents their relationship.

The coverage is exhaustive:

MOVIE MUSICALS. Every known film musical (some 1,200 in all) from The Jazz Singer through 1950: casts, songs, composers, year of release.

PERFORMERS. Biographies of every major and semi-major figure to emerge in the first half of this century: singers, composers, bandleaders, actors, musicians, impresarios, arrangers—2,105 in all. Includes career summaries, key dates, complete lists of film and Broadway musicals for each artist, lengthy lists of representative recordings spanning the career of each artist, all major and semi-major songs of each composer by year—in short, every key fact about every artist. (The 1900-1950 in the title refers to every performer to emerge during this period. When a career extends beyond 1950, that career is followed as long as the performer remains active—up through early 1974. Thus, the work actually covers popular music and jazz through the 20th century, but excludes rock.)

SONGS. Most popular songs year by year, with composers — some 100-200 songs per year. In addition, virtually every remembered song of the period is listed with its composer and/or with the artists identified with the song — some 28,000 songs in all.

REPRESENTATIVE RECORDINGS. Outstanding and typical popular recordings from the dawn of 78s in 1909 through 1950 — average about 150 per year. Outstanding and typical jazz recordings from the debut of jazz on records in 1917 through 1950 — average about 75 per year. But besides these annual listings, the set features a broad, in-depth, selective discography/solography for every performer whose biography appears here.

BROADWAY MUSICALS. Every known musical, 1900-1950: casts, playwrights, songs, composers, dates. Some 1,500 in all.

BROADCASTING. Extensive treatment of each artist's role in radio and TV. Most complete coverage extant on music in broadcasting.

4 MAJOR INDEXES. These priceless tools speed the reader to the information he needs in seconds:

- Index of Songs. A massive 28,161. Most complete list extant.
- Index of Performers. 11,505 names. Most complete list extant.
- Index of Movie Musicals. 1,230 films. Most complete list extant.
- Index of Broadway Musicals. 1,522 in all. Most complete list extant.

5 USEFUL APPENDICES.

- > Numerical listing of the nine major record labels, from the mid-20s through the early 40s, by artist and song. Lists 33,000 records. First time available in book form.
- > Academy Award winners and nominees for music, 1934-1973.
- > Down Beat and Metronome poll winners, 1937-1973.
- > Time chart showing release dates, year by year, of 19 major record labels, 1924-1945.
- > Record Collecting for Beginners: helpful essay on how to find rare 78s and LPs.

For professionals and for buffs — in music, film, records, broadcasting, the musical stage and vaudeville — this set finally documents, in sweeping detail, the richest popular music the world has ever known, in its golden era.

15. ALBERTINE, CHARLES

ts ar cm

Born c. 1929

Noted as arranger for Les & Larry Elgart band in 50s and 60s. Created new, distinctive sound for dance band. From Passaic, N.J. Sideman with Jimmy Palmer six months in 1946 and Johnny Dee 1947-8. With Bobby Byrne about a year, doubling as arranger, then Sammy Kaye six months. In pit band of Broadway show TOP BANANA, 1951-2. Prominence in 1953 with arrangements for new Les Elgart band. Brother Larry Elgart's lead alto sax, combined with Albertine's arrangements, gave band unique sound and style: modern, mellow, haunting, with a subtle swing. In following years continued to arrange for band under name of both Elgarts. Also arranged, in more orthodox style, for singers Nat Cole, Frankie Avalon, Neil Sedaka, Conway Twitty, Adam Wade, Dion, The Four Lads. Mid-60s arranged for Sammy Kaye, giving band Elgart sound although at intervals retaining well-known Kaye sax section style and trombone glisses. Some composing for movies, e.g. title song of 1964 movie THE LONG SHIPS.

19. ALLEN, HENRY "RED"

t vo cm B

Born January 7, 1908, Algiers, La.Died April 17, 1967, New York, N.Y.

Noted jazz trumpet star and combo leader. Long career from late 20s to late 60s. Played spirited Harlem jazz rather than New Orleans style. As youngster Allen played in father's brass band. In New Orleans jazz groups including George Lewis. In 1927 joined famous King Oliver in St. Louis, then went to New York with him. Late 1927-9 back in New Orleans with Fate Marable on riverboats.

Important period with Luis Russell 1929-33. Solos attracted attention; name sometimes used as leader. Three important band jobs established him as jazz star: Fletcher Henderson 1933-4, Mills Blue Rhythm Band 1934-6, Louis Armstrong 1937-40. (Armstrong band actually old Luis Russell band.) In 1933-7 Allen recorded frequently as leader of small jazz groups, small-band jazz at its best. On most, handled vocals in fine jazz style. Late 1940 Allen formed small band with trombonist J. C. Higginbotham, who remained till 1947. In 40s and early 50s Allen had long runs in New York, Boston, Chicago, California. Good front man and entertainer. In early 1954 Allen opened at Metropole in New York, a fabulous run lasting till mid-1965, interrupted occasionally by tours or special jobs (including European jaunt with Kid Ory late 1959). Later in 60s Allen toured Europe several times leading groups. Last big job at Jimmy Ryan's in New York 1966. European trip early 1967. Died of cancer several weeks after return to New York. Recording prolific. Composed several jazz pieces: Siesta at the Fiesta; Red Jump; Pleasing Paul; Algiers Stomp; Get the Mop; Biffly Blues; and his famous Ride, Red, Ride.

21. ALLEN, STEVE

p vo cm lyr B

Born December 26, 1921, New York, N.Y.

Well-known, multitalented TV personality and entertainer of 50s and 60s. Parents vaudeville performers, Belle Montrose & Billy Allen; Steve traveled widely with them. Attended Arizona State Teachers College. Radio work in Phoenix as announcer-pianist-writer, later in Los Angeles. 1947 disc jockey on CBS radio, Hollywood. Other radio shows late 40s. To New York 1950 for radio and early TV. Founded Tonight Show, top late-night TV attraction mid-50s. Introduced singers Steve Lawrence, Eydie Gorme, Andy Williams. Easy-going format of this and similar shows later showed Allen at his best. Great flair for comedy and foolishness, adept at adlibbing. Played capable piano, also sang. Popularity and jazz rapport led to title role in important 1956 movie THE BENNY GOODMAN STORY. Allen took clarinet lessons from Sol Yaged to help him play the role realistically. After completing film, landed Sunday evening TV show opposite Ed Sullivan. Show lasted several years, brought fame to comedians Louis Nye, Don Knotts, Tom Poston, Bill Dana, Dayton Allen.

In 60s Allen ran several TV shows of varying formats, some late-night syndicated shows. He and wife Jayne Meadows appeared on many shows as guest stars. Allen also served as moderator on popular show I've Got a Secret. Always had excellent bands on TV shows: Bobby Byrne 1953-4, Skitch Henderson 1954-6, Les Brown on Sunday show in late 50s, Donn Trenner all-star combo on syndicated show in 60s. Recorded frequently, featuring his piano in small groups or large orchestras. Author of several books, mostly comedy. 31. AMBROSE, BERT

v B

Born 1897, London, England

Died 1973

Leader of one of England's top bands of 30s and 40s, billed as Ambrose & His Orchestra. Studied in New York after World War I, playing violin in theatre and symphony orchestras. In U. S. till late 1922, except for one return to England in 1920. Back in England in late 1921, organized dance band and opened at Luigi's Embassy Club in London for six years. Six-year run at London's New Mayfair Hotel established band as one of England's most popular, 1927-33. Returned to Embassy Club 1933-5, then toured. By 1932 most popular band on English radio.

Band had rich, full ensemble sound with solid beat. Arrangements featured top British jazzmen. By mid-30s band tightly knit, could swing mightily. Featured compositions and arrangement of Sid Phillips; best known probably The Night Ride. Recorded extensively through 30s and 40s. Early 30s mostly sweet hotel-band style with occasional semi-hot numbers. When band entered swing phase in mid-30s, records popular on Decca in U.S. Featured in British movie musical SOFT LIGHTS AND SWEET MUSIC. Band active through 40s in clubs and theatres, on radio and records. During war, band achieved melodious sound, at times using Glenn Miller reed style and boasting notable arrangements.

Through the years Ambrose featured outstanding musicians. Future band-leaders Ted Heath and Lew Stone worked for him late 20s. Sidemen of 30s included Danny Polo (cl), Tommy McQuater (t), Bill Amstell (ts), Bert Barnes (p), Max Bacon (d), Lew Davis (tb). Future band-leaders Stanley Black, George Melachrinou, Kenny Baker, Eddie Calvert and George Shearing also worked for him, as well as vocalist Vera Lynn. Ronnie Munro was another of his arrangers. By early 50s Ambrose was out of limelight but still touring England with smaller band, playing smaller spots. Enjoyed brief upsurge in mid-50s. Later years turned to talent management.

32. AMECHE, DON(DOMINIC FELIX AMICI) ^{vo}Born May 31, 1908, Kenosha, Wis.

Important movie star late 30s to early 40s. Excellent dramatic actor with distinctive speaking voice. Sang in some movies, also on Broadway stage in pleasant though not outstanding voice. Received education at several colleges. Played with stock company in Madison, Wis. Began working on New York radio late 1930. Big break spring 1931 on First Nighter network show, on which he appeared into mid-30s. On other shows. Brother Jim also on radio, with voice almost identical to Don's.

Starring role in 1936 movie SINS OF MAN launched Don's Hollywood career. Stardom after great portrayal of young Indian in RAMONA, late 1936. First singing role in early 1937 movie ONE IN A MILLION (skating star Sonja Henie's first movie). Co-star in big 1938 musical ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND. Appeared in important films in late 30s, portraying famous inventor in THE STORY OF ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL (1939) and composer Stephen Foster in SWANEE RIVER (1940). Starred with Alice Faye and Betty Grable in several movie musicals of early 40s. Also continued on radio. On 1937 summer show with Dorothy Lamour. Nelson Eddy joined late 1937-8 as show became popular for Chase & Sanborn. Ameche stayed as M. C. through 30s, had own variety show 1940 and Kraft Music Hall summer show 1941. Also appeared on radio dramatic shows. Late 40s to early 50s co-starred with Frances Langford on shows which included their skits as The Bickersons. Appeared with Miss Langford on TV in 1951. Surprisingly, Ameche's movie career waned after mid-40s. Starred in Broadway musicals SILK STOCKINGS (1955), GOLDBLOCKS (1958), HENRY, SWEET HENRY (1967). Appeared on TV occasionally in 50s, had run in early 60s as ringmaster on popular circus series. In later years did some TV commercials.

(brothers Ed, Gene, Joe, Vic; real name URICK)

Popular singing quartet, late 40s to late 50s. Home town Malden, Mass. First sang professionally in Boston. Later played theatres, clubs in New York, Chicago, Hollywood. Popular early 50s via recordings, personal and TV appearances. Own TV series 1955. Quartet boasted excellent musicianship, handling ballads in tasteful, straightforward style with good blend. Put on excellent stage show, mixing ample comedy with music. Quartet broke up in late 50s, Ed Ames continuing as single with good role in Broadway musical CARNIVAL and long run on Daniel Boone TV series, playing an Indian. Career received big boost from appearances on Johnny Carson show. Especially popular was his rendition of hit record Try to Remember, Ed's popular LP big seller. Frequent TV guest shots into 70s.

36. ANDERSON, CAT t cm B (WILLIAM ALONZO ANDERSON)

Born September 12, 1916, Greenville, S.C.

High-note trumpet star noted for power and wild style, mainly with Duke Ellington. Studied music in orphanage in Charleston, S.C., where received nickname Cat. Played with band formed from orphanage musicians, the Carolina Cotton Pickers, in early and mid-30s. Toured south to east and back again. In 1937 joined Hartley Toots band in Florida, then to New York. Soon joined Claude Hopkins, then in 1938-41 the Sunset Royal Orchestra (under direction of Doc Wheeler). Wrote How 'Bout That Mess and was featured on band's recording of it. In 1942 spent brief periods with Lucky Millinder, Erskine Hawkins, Stan Kenton, Lionel Hampton. Joined Sabby Lewis, 1943. Rejoined Hampton 1944. Late 1944-7 played with Ellington, where frantic trumpet work won attention. For rest of 40s, mostly led own band. Rejoined Ellington for long association, 1950-9. Left to lead own band awhile and play with Count Basie, then played with Ellington off and on during 60s. Freelanced in 70s on west coast, especially with Hampton and Bill Berry. Composed several jazz numbers.

Born 1904, Gilroy, Calif.

Died December 28, 1949, Los Angeles, Calif.

Featured vocalist with Duke Ellington 1931-42, blending with band's style in excellent fashion. Had formal voice training, did early work in small clubs in Los Angeles. Toured as dancer in a Fanchon & Marco revue, later singing with the show. Through 20s continued to tour in clubs and stage revues. At intervals sang briefly with bands of Paul Howard and Earl Hines. Toured Australia with Sonny Clay revue. In early 1931 joined Ellington for long, successful association. Featured with Ellington through 30s until mid-1942. Consistently superior; elegant stylist. Appeared with Ellington in 1937 Marx Brothers movie, A DAY AT THE RACES. Left Ellington to settle in California and play clubs there as a single. Also had her own club in Los Angeles several years, the Chicken Shack. Late 1946 enjoyed good run at a Hollywood spot. Generally inactive musically in last years.

42. ANTHONY, RAY t vo ar B (RAYMOND ANTONINI)

Born January 20, 1922, Bentleyville, Pa.

Trumpet-playing leader of one of most popular dance bands of 50s. Grew up in Cleveland, playing with area bands as teenager. At 17 landed first important job with Al Donahue band. Then Glenn Miller band, late 1940 to mid-1941. With Jimmy Dorsey about six months. In early 1942 led band briefly in Cleveland. Led service band in World War II. In early 1946 Anthony organized band, gained first recognition in midwest. In 1949 played important engagement in New York. By early 50s Anthony had a top band, continued on top through much of 50s. Band had crisp ensemble sound with full modern arrangements (many by George Williams), featured Glenn Miller reed sound. Anthony did not build up sidemen as jazz soloists. Featured own rich-toned, sweet trumpet on ballads. Fast-tempo numbers on clean-swinging ensemble lines spotted only occasional solos. Several singers and vocal groups worked with band, with Tommy Mercer most prominent. Ray's brother Leo played sax most of this time.

Recording output prolific. Leading hit probably Dragnet. Band popular with young people especially; played proms, made extensive college tour 1953. Anthony co-composer of popular novelty song and dance, The Bunny Hop. Band had good spot in 1955 movie DADDY LONG LEGS. Anthony played small roles in several minor movies in late 50s. In 1953 band joined singers Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell on TV series. In 1956 appeared with Frank Leahy and sports guests in another series. Featured in its own series in late 50s. In 1954 Anthony bought Billy May band, turned it over to Sam Donahue to lead for several years. Anthony disbanded in 60s, later formed combo to play clubs.

With Claude Hopkins 1931-4, Chick Webb briefly late 1934-5, Fletcher Henderson 1936-7 (except for interval with Mills Blue Rhythm Band). In late 30s rejoined Mills Blue Rhythm Band; later played with Edgar Hayes, Fats Waller, Claude Hopkins, Benny Carter. In 1940 with Zutty Singleton; also led own band. In 1941 with Fletcher Henderson and Joe Marsala; 1942-6 with Jimmie Lunceford. In 50s Arbello worked mostly as leader of own band, mainly in New York area. In 60s played with Machito's band. In late 60s returned to Puerto Rico, remaining active as bandleader. Co-composer of 1936 swing number, Big Chief De Sota.

Born c. 1903, Winona, Ill.

Co-leader, with Phil Ohman, of Arden-Ohman Orchestra in 20s and 30s. Later led orchestra alone. Attended American Conservatory of Music. After World War I Arden went to New York, made piano rolls. Teamed with Phil Ohman to form piano duo on records and appeared in Broadway musicals: LADY BE GOOD (1924), TIP TOES and OH, KAY! (1926), FUNNY FACE (1927), SPRING IS HERE (1929). As piano duo they appeared on radio from late 20s to mid-30s as guests, also regulars on such series as American Album of Familiar Music 1934-5 and Bayer Musical Review 1935. Recorded with large orchestra featuring good arrangements, good musicianship. Used various vocalists (Frank Luther frequently). Mainly recorded show tunes.

In mid-30s duo split up, each leading own orchestra. Arden soon dropped dance band, turning to conducting studio orchestras on network radio. In 1934-7 shows included Rings of Melody, Broadway Varieties, Outdoor Girl Beauty Parade, Harv & Esther Show, Sunday Musical Matinee, and Sweetest Love Songs Ever Sung (starring Frank Munn). Conductor for Abe Lyman's orchestra on many shows in popular Waltz Time series. Most important radio job in early and mid-40s as conductor on highly-rated Manhattan Merry-Go-Round on Sunday evening. Also on American Melody Hour in 1947.

*Born February 3, 1902, Memphis, Tenn.
Died August 27, 1971, Chicago, Ill.*

Jazz pianist with early bands, later led small band. Long career from pre-1920 till death. Studied music at Fisk University. Family moved to Chicago in 1917. Began playing sheet music at music store, jobbed with several bands. Worked briefly with Freddie Keppard. Led first group in 1920. With famed King Oliver at intervals 1921-4. Lil married trumpet jazz great Louis Armstrong in 1924 (separated several years later, divorced 1938). Continued to lead own band; Louis worked with it at intervals. In 1927 Lil recorded classic jazz works with Louis. Toured with Freddie Keppard. In late 20s Lil took more formal musical training in Chicago and New York. In 1930-32 led all-girl orchestra, played theatres and clubs. Then formed all-male orchestra, did radio work. Also worked as pianist in several stage revues. In mid-30s toured with all-male orchestra, finally settled in New York. In late 1936 began recording for Decca. Using all-star jazzmen, produced excellent small-band jazz. Featured vocalist on some of these records. In late 1940 returned to Chicago, worked there through 40s and early 50s, mostly as piano soloist. Long runs at several clubs. Played in Europe in 1952. Remained active through 50s and 60s, mostly in Chicago area. Jobs included long runs at club in Stickney, Ill. Composed several jazz numbers, including Just for a Thrill, Brown Gal, Perdido Street Blues, and her most famous (with Louis Armstrong), Struttin' with Some Barbecue. Lil suffered fatal heart attack August 27, 1971, while playing concert at Chicago's Civic Center Plaza to honor Louis, who had died July 6.

(nicknamed Satchelmouth and Satchmo)

*Born July 4, 1900, New Orleans, La.
Died July 6, 1971, New York, N.Y.*

All-time great trumpet star. Fabulous career pre-1920 till death. Achieved jazz fame as well as commercial success. Also celebrated for rough jazz-styled vocals. Much beloved figure in music. Grew up in rough neighborhood and as youngster sang, danced, clowned in streets for money. Put in waifs' home, learned trumpet. After release worked at odd nonmusical jobs several years. Occasionally played band jobs, finally had own group. First big job in 1918, replacing famous King Oliver in Kid Ory band. Riverboat jobs with Fate Marable for three years. In late 1921-2 worked with various bands in New Orleans, including those of Zutty Singleton and Papa Celestin. Joined King Oliver in mid-1922, toured, remained till mid-1924. Married Oliver's pianist, Lil Hardin. Later 1924-5 with Fletcher Henderson, became toast of New York jazz circles. Then worked at intervals with wife's band in Chicago. During 1926-8 led own groups and worked with Erskine Tate and Carroll Dickerson. In late 20s recorded a body of classic jazz with his Hot Five and Hot Seven. Through the years his recording output was prolific and rich. Jazzmen in early groups included Johnny and Baby Dodds, Earl Hines, Albert Nicholas, J. C. Higginbotham, Kid Ory. By late 20s Louis was acclaimed by most musicians and jazz fans as the greatest trumpeter. Style simple, tasteful and swinging, with purity of tone and effective use of high and middle register. Playing ahead of its time; stood out, all by itself; brought jazz of age, raised it to status of a sophisticated art. His jazz vocals important part of that art.

In 1929 Louis took a band to New York. Later freelanced, played jobs across the country, reached California mid-1930. Toured more, conquered Europe in 1932 and again in 1933-4. From late 1935 till mid-40s fronted Luis Russell big band. He and Lil Armstrong divorced 1938 after long separation. Formed new big band in 1944-5. In mid-1947 formed small jazz combo, Louis Armstrong & His All-Stars. Maintained truly all-star group for years, featuring at various times Jack Teagarden, Barney Bigard, Billy Kyle, Earl Hines, Trummy Young, Peanuts Hucko. Regular concert tours in U.S. and abroad from late 40s through 60s. Also on TV and in movies. Louis made many concert and TV appearances as single, later years featuring singing more than playing (which remained close to early style). Several hit records in early 50s with Gordon Jenkins orchestra backing. Great early 60s hit in Hello, Dolly, which remained associated with him ever after. Became great showman and entertainer, widely acclaimed wherever he appeared. Late 60s declining health slowed him down. Appeared infrequently 1971. When he died everyone felt a great loss. Tributes poured in from all over the world.

Louis composed such classic jazz numbers as Heah Me Talkin' to Ya; Satchel Mouth Swing; Sugar Foot Stomp; Wild Man Blues; Ol' Man Mose; Struttin' with Some Barbecue; No Variety Blues; Hobo; You Can't Ride This Train; I Want a Big Butter and Egg Man, Someday You'll Be Sorry. Made numerous movies: PENNIES FROM HEAVEN (1936), ARTISTS AND MODELS (1937), EVERY DAY'S A HOLIDAY (1938), CABIN IN THE SKY (1943), ATLANTIC CITY (1944), PILLOW TO POST (1945), NEW ORLEANS and CARNEGIE HALL (1947), A SONG IS BORN (1948), THE STRIP and HERE COMES THE GROOM (1951), GLORY ALLEY (1952), THE GLENN MILLER STORY (1954), HIGH SOCIETY (1956), SATCHMO THE GREAT (1957), THE FIVE PENNIES (1959), PARIS BLUES (1961), WHERE THE BOYS MEET THE GIRLS (1965), A MAN CALLED ADAM (1966), HELLO, DOLLY (1969).

52. ARNAZ, DESI

d vo B

Born c. 1917, Santiago, Cuba

Cuban singer and bongo-player, achieved prominence in TV in 50s co-starring with wife Lucille Ball in long-running series, I

Love Lucy. Educated in Miami. At 17 sang in local band, later sang with Xavier Cugat in mid-30s. In late 30s became bandleader, sang and played bongo drums. Good showman. Had role in 1939 Broadway musical TOO MANY GIRLS, minor roles in some movies, including movie version of TOO MANY GIRLS (1940) and FOUR JACKS AND A JILL (1941). Lucille Ball was one of the stars in the 1940 film and Arnaz married her that year. Continued as bandleader into late 40s. Band featured Latin-American music but could play smooth, sweet music as well. Featured Jane Harvey as vocalist for a time. Late 1946-7 Arnaz and band appeared on Bob Hope's radio show. Arnaz retired from music for a period but in 1950 reorganized band on west coast.

In 1951 Arnaz and Lucille began now-famous TV series, I Love Lucy. It caught on quickly and ran into late 50s, then continued as reruns. They established Desilu Productions, branched out producing other comedy shows and dramatic series that brought them tremendous TV success. Divorced in 1960. In 60s Arnaz continued producing, appeared infrequently on TV, sometimes with son Desi (also in show business).

54. ARNHEIM, GUS

V

Born September 11, 1897, Philadelphia, Pa.

Died January 19, 1955, Los Angeles, Calif.

Bandleader of 20s and 30s, based on west coast. Early job as pianist in Abe Lyman band 1921-3 at Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles. Played other jobs, composed several popular songs. Most famous: I Cried for You (1923), followed by Mandalay and In the Land of Shady Palm Trees (1924). Popular songs of early 30s were It Must Be True (1930), Sweet and Lovely and I'm Gonna Get You (1931). Formed own band in late 20s, toured U.S. and Europe, played theatres, clubs, ballrooms, appeared in 1929 film THE STREET GIRL.

Long runs at Cocoanut Grove, popular spot with film celebrities. Future singing star Russ Columbo in Arnheim band 1929-31. In early 1931 Bing Crosby's career as single received first boost when Bing and Rhythm Boys sang and recorded with band. Singer Donald Novis worked with band and future bandleader Jimmie Grier was saxman-arranger. At this time Arnheim band had tightly-knit sound and light-swinging, distinctive arrangements. Received nationwide attention late 1931 on Lucky Strike radio show, which featured "magic carpet" remotes of bands from dance spots across U.S. Band scored with popular 1931 record, Sweet and Lovely. By mid-30s developed into typical hotel-style group. Toured, appeared on Bing Crosby radio show 1934. Clarinet stars Woody Herman, Joe Dixon, Irving Fazola worked with Arnheim at different times. In 1936 Arnheim developed excellent swing-styled band with smooth, fluid sax section, biting brass. Budd Johnson of Earl Hines band did most of arranging. In 1937 pianist Stan Kenton joined, did some arranging. Good vocalist Jimmy Farrell featured during this period. Arnheim led band into mid-40s in various spots on west coast. Retired from band business several years but came back in 1954 to lead small band on west coast TV show for a time.

55. ARNOLD, EDDY

vo g cm lyr B

Born May 15, 1918, near Henderson, Tenn.

Top artist in country and western music. After long career rose to great prominence in 60s. During career sometimes billed as The Tennessee Ploughboy. Grew up on farm, took early interest in music. Played for square dances in area. Early in career played on radio in Jackson, Tenn., in 1936. Later played radio, minor clubs, "joints" in Memphis, St. Louis, Louisville, many other locales. With Pee Wee King 1940-3. Attracted attention when featured with King group on Grand Ole Opry in Nashville. Became popular enough by 1943 to work as single. Landed own radio show in Nashville. Many appearances on Grand Ole Opry during 40s. First big year 1946 with hit record, That's How Much I Love You. Following years brought more hits: Bouquet of Roses, Anytime, I'll Hold You in My Heart, Just a Little Lovin', Texarkana Baby, I Really Don't Want to Know, That Do Make It Nice. Daily show in 1947 on Mutual radio used theme The Cattle Call.

Active on TV in early 50s with guest spots and syndicated series, Eddy Arnold Time. Made land deals and other investments which brought great wealth. With music scene in turmoil due to rock & roll and popular trends, career waned during 1955-63 and Arnold worked only occasionally. Decided to try comeback, changed to middle-of-road music style with good arrangements and attractive backing. Astutely selected good material to record. In later 60s had two great hit records, What's He Doing in My World? and Make the World Go Away. Latter became all-time favorite with Arnold fans, launched comeback. Appeared on top TV shows in later 60s and early 70s, also hosted many shows. Consistent crowd-pleaser, popular wherever he played in later years. Resumed busy recording schedule. Co-composer of many songs. Best known: Just a Little Lovin', I'll Hold You in My Heart, C-H-R-I-S-T-M-A-S, I'm Throwing Rice at the Girl I Love, Easy on the Eyes, One Kiss Too Many, Will Santy Come to Shanty Town?, You Don't Know Me, Then I Turned and Slowly Walked Away.

61. ASTAIRE, FRED vo cm (FREDERICK AUSTERLITZ)

Born May 10, 1899, Omaha, Nebr.

Dancing giant, singing and acting star of stage and screen over 50 years. Generally considered most talented of dancers. Performed in smooth, elegant style, developed many intricate and innovative routines. Sang in light and sophisticated manner, adept in delivery of lyrics. A favorite of many composers for performing their songs. Co-starred with Ginger Rogers in distinguished series of popular movie musicals in middle and late 30s. Later worked with other dancing partners. Top movie star for four decades.

First professional appearance at 5 in Paterson, N. J. Performed in vaudeville with sister Adele in dancing act until 1916. They began Broadway career with supporting roles in OVER THE TOP (1917). Other shows followed: THE PASSING SHOW OF 1918, APPLE BLOSSOMS (1919), THE LOVE LETTER (1921). By this time, Astaires were headliners. Started in FOR GOODNESS SAKE and THE BUNCH AND JUDY (1922), LADY BE GOOD (1924), FUNNY FACE (1927), SMILES (1930), THE BAND WAGON (1931). Also appeared in London in STOP FLIRTING (1923; actually THE BUNCH AND JUDY retitled) and LADY BE GOOD (1926). Team broke up in 1932 when Adele married and became Lady Charles Cavendish.

Fred's first solo stage role in GAY DIVORCE (1932), later played same show in London. This led to movie test and contract. Played small, uneventful dancing role in movie DANCING LADY (1933). But in late 1933 movie FLYING DOWN TO RIO joined with Ginger Rogers as dance team in secondary leads, was instant hit. Personality, charm, dancing and singing, made Astaire a natural for films. Co-starred with Miss Rogers during 30s in eight other popular musicals which introduced many great songs. Team then broke up (reunited once in 1949 movie) and Astaire danced in 40s and 50s movies with Rita Hayworth, Vera-Ellen, Cyd Charisse, Audrey Hepburn, others. Also appeared in dramatic roles. Starred on own radio series in mid-30s, made appearances on others over the years. Appearances on TV in 50s, 60s and 70s including two series, It Takes a Thief and The Over-the-Hill Gang. Two widely acclaimed specials of his own in 1958 and 1960.

Leading songs associated with Astaire include: Oh, Lady Be Good; Fascinating

Rhythm; 'S Wonderful; Dancing in the Dark; I Love Louisa; Night and Day; Carioca; The Continental; I Won't Dance; Cheek to Cheek; Top Hat, White Tie and Tails; Let's Face the Music and Dance; The Way You Look Tonight; A Fine Romance; Bojangles of Harlem; They Can't Take That Away from Me; A Foggy Day; Change Partners; Dearly Beloved; One for My Baby; Steppin' Out with My Baby. In 1953 Astaire made outstanding LP record set, The Fred Astaire Story, featuring songs associated with him. Done in impeccable taste, it featured excellent jazz backing by small combo of leading modern musicians. Astaire composed popular song of 1936, I'm Building Up to an Awful Letdown. Other compositions: I'll Never Let You Go; Blue without You; Sweet Sorrow; Just One More Dance, Madame; If Swing Goes, I Go Too; Just Like Taking Candy from a Baby; Oh, My Achin' Back. By late 60s Astaire became less active in show business.

Born c. 1912, New York, N.Y.

Popular recording artist of 40s and 50s with "society" piano style. Specialized in Latin-American music. Self-taught musician, played in Greenwich Village clubs as youngster. Later studied with prominent teachers. Early important job as pianist with Paul Specht band several years. Hand injury forced temporary retirement from music. Later led own band, took up xylophone. Played xylophone with Paul Whiteman, Ferde Grofe and Joe Moss on radio in early and mid-30s. Then as piano soloist played clubs and hotels in New York and Brooklyn. Attained prominence by mid-40s through records. Scored in 1946 with Misirlou. Continued recording and playing clubs in 50s. Gradually faded.

65. AULD, GEORGE ts as cm B (JOHN ALTWERGER)

Born May 19, 1919, Toronto, Canada

Tenor sax star of swing era who bridged gap to progressive jazz. Played gutty, forceful jazz solos in excellent taste. Child prodigy on alto sax, won scholarship and studied with sax virtuoso Rudy Wiedoeft in U.S. Became interested in jazz, switched to tenor sax. Led own combo at intervals, jobbed in New York. Won prominence as featured soloist with Bunny Berigan band early 1937 to late 1938; work shone with Artie Shaw in 1939. When Shaw quit abruptly in late 1939, Auld led band briefly. With Jan Savitt during early 1940, then with Benny Goodman late 1940 to mid-1941. Again with Shaw to early 1942. Led own band in 1942. Brief military service in 1943. During 1943-6 led own groups, small and large. As bop emerged in mid-40s, Auld adapted easily. With Billy Eckstine in 1948. Led several outstanding groups in late 40s and early 50s. With Count Basie briefly in 1950. Played role in Broadway play THE RAT RACE. Early 50s some commercial recordings, sometimes with chorus in background. Settled in California, ran own night club mid-50s. Studio work on west coast and New York late 50s. Composed several jazz numbers. Settled in Las Vegas and continued semiactive through 60s mostly in that area, freelancing or leading band.

66. AUSTIN, GENE

p vo cm

Born June 24, 1900, Gainesville, Texas Died January 24, 1972, Palm Springs, Calif.

Well-known entertainer, top recording artist of 20s. Had soft voice and effortless manner, played piano in same easy style to complement voice perfectly. Grew up in Yellow Pine, La., and Minden, La. At 15 ran off with circus, there learned to play calliope. Military service, World War I. Later teamed with Roy Bergere in vaudeville. They composed hit song of 1924, How Come You Do Me Like You Do?, which became standard, as did two other Austin songs: When My Sugar Walks Down the Street (1924) and The Lonesome Road (1929). Ridin' Around in the Rain enjoyed popularity in 1934.

Austin began recording career in mid-20s, established himself as star with 1927 hit record of My Blue Heaven. Multimillion seller, remained top all-time seller until supplanted by Bing Crosby's White Christmas fifteen years later. By early 30s Austin's name had faded. He remained active, working clubs as soloist or with small group. Good M.C., entertainer and showman, sometimes worked with Candy & Coco. In 1934 appeared in movie GIFT OF GAB, singing Blue Sky Avenue (probably an attempt at a sequel to his great hit of 1927). Brief roles in SADIE MCKEE (1934) and KLONDIKE ANNIE (1935; wrote song for film's star, Mae West, I'm an Occidental Woman in an Oriental Mood for Love). In mid-30s dropped out of show business for a time but came back as featured vocalist on Joe Penner radio show late 1936-8. In early 40s Austin ran own club in California, titled Blue Heaven. In later years largely inactive in entertainment world, save for occasional club jobs and rare TV appearances. Probably last public appearance early 1971 on Merv Griffin late-night TV show that spotlighted various composers.

t d B

Best known for hot trumpet with Jan Savitt band in late 30s and early 40s. Solo work became distinctive part of band, an intense and steady flow of notes, dirty-toned and hard-swinging. With young Glenn Miller band from early 1938 to early 1939, just before it soared to the heights. With Savitt 1939 to early 1941. Joined Larry Clinton in mid-1941. In 1943 played in Abe Lyman band. Jobbed about during following years and in late 40s led own group. Based in Philadelphia, led band in 50s, sometimes on tours which included college dates. Through 60s Austin was still fronting bands occasionally in Philadelphia area.

69. AUTREY, HERMAN t B

Born December 4, 1904, Evergreen, Ala.

Trumpet jazzman in Fats Waller combo of 30s. Distinctive style and fresh ideas in solo work as well as accompaniment. Went to Pittsburgh in 1923, played locally and toured. Jobbed in Washington, D.C., in late 20s, also did pit band work.

Jobbed in Philadelphia 1929-32, did much theatre band work. In 1933 joined Charlie Johnson band in New York. In 1934-9 with popular Fats Waller combo, Autrey enjoyed his greatest period. On group's recordings, Autrey's happy and inventive trumpet sparked many a session, especially those on which he teamed with Eugene Sedric (cl, ts). Two combined to produce fine free-wheeling jazz behind Waller. Autrey wrote good swing number, Yacht Club Swing. In 1940 joined Claude Hopkins (also briefly with him in 1938). In early 40s with Stuff Smith and Una Mae Carlisle. Freelanced in late 40s and 50s, led own band at times. Jobs with Sol Yaged in New York in mid-50s. Continued active into 70s, mostly with The Saints and Sinners group, touring abroad and freelancing.

72. AYRES, MITCHELL v ar cm B (MITCHELL AGRESS)

Born December 24, 1910, Milwaukee, Wis.

Died September 5, 1969, Las Vegas, Nev., struck by car

Bandleader who rose to prominence backing popular singer Perry Como on radio in late 40s and on TV in 50s and 60s. Attended Columbia University. In early 30s first important job with Little Jack Little band. In late 1936 musicians left Little to form co-op band, with Agress fronting (later took name Ayres). Ayres led good, solid sweet band in the late 30s and early 40s. Good arrangements generously spotlighted beautifully toned, fluid alto sax of Harry Terrell. Theme song: You Go to My Head. Vocalists were Mary Ann Mercer and Tommy Taylor. The band appeared in a few minor movies like LADY, LET'S DANCE and MOONLIGHT AND CACTUS in 1944. Frequently featured novelty numbers on jobs and records, but made many good dance records as well. Played some radio too, including Jack Pepper and Andy Russell shows in 1944. Ayres disbanded, then in late 40s radio regular as musical director for Perry Como many years during Como's reign. They entered TV in early 50s, also continuing on radio for a time. In 1955 Como on full-hour highly rated weekly show into mid-60s. Ayres and band of top musicians provided excellent backing. When show folded Ayres moved to The Hollywood Palace on TV during middle and later 60s until death. Recording director for Columbia late 40s and early 50s, accompanying singers. Composed a few minor songs.

76. BAILEY, BUSTER cl as ss B (WILLIAM C. BAILEY)

*Born July 19, 1902, Memphis, Tenn.
 Died April 12, 1967, Brooklyn, N.Y.*

A top jazz clarinetist known chiefly for his work with Fletcher Henderson and John Kirby. Had thin-toned sound with constant, fluent flow of notes, distinctive style. Early job with W. C. Handy 1917-19. With Erskine Tate 1919-23, King Oliver late 1923-4. Then began important association with Henderson in late 1924 which was to last, off and on, to 1937. With Henderson until late 1928 (except for brief interval). In 1929 toured U.S. and Europe with Noble Sissle. During 20s Bailey appeared on many records accompanying blues singers, recorded widely through the years.

Upon return to U.S., played with Edgar Hayes and others, rejoined Sissle 1931-3.

With Henderson again for most of 1934. Joined Mills Blue Rhythm Band late 1934-5. Rejoined Henderson late 1935 till early 1937. In this period Henderson's great swing records brought Bailey acclaim as never before. Next important period 1937-44 as star with Kirby combo. This group's tightly knit sound and intricate arrangements caught fancy of jazz fans. Bailey's great technique fit in perfectly. Freelanced in mid-40s, at times led own combo, returned to Kirby at intervals. With Wilbur DeParis 1947-9 and Red Allen 1950-1. Versatile musician, did pit band and symphonic work. Many jobs with Allen later 50s. Early 60s long periods with Wild Bill Davison, also with The Saints and Sinners. In mid-1965 joined Louis Armstrong All-Stars, remaining until death.

77. BAILEY, MILDRED

vo p

Born February 27, 1907, Tekoa, Wash.

Died December 12, 1951, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

An all-time great vocalist, with jazz-styled interpretations of songs, warmth and feeling. Achieved most fame singing with bands of Paul Whiteman and husband Red Norvo in 30s. Educated in Spokane. At 16 played piano in movie house. Also worked in Seattle music shop demonstrating sheet music, where heard and hired by night club owner. Performed on Los Angeles radio and at various clubs on west coast. Via brother Al Rinker, member of Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys vocal trio, she landed plum job with Whiteman in 1929. Received good coverage with popular Whiteman band on records and radio, and by early 30s was called The Rockin' Chair Lady because of her association with song Rockin' Chair. Remained with Whiteman till 1933 except for interval in 1932. Seriously injured in auto accident, and prolonged inactivity caused her to take on plumpness which remained through the years.

Freelanced as soloist in mid-30s, cutting excellent records using outstanding jazzmen. In 1934-5 on radio shows of George Jessel and Willard Robison. In swing years husband Red Norvo formed great band featuring subtle swing arrangements of Eddie Sauter. Mildred featured, did best work 1936-9. Red and Mildred billed as Mr. & Mrs. Swing. Mildred joined Benny Goodman in fall of 1939 on radio and records. In 40s pursued career as soloist, though illness caused intervals of inactivity. From mid-1944 to early 1945 featured on musically outstanding radio show. Worked intermittently during late 40s and into 1951. Recorded heavily over the years under own name.

78. BAILEY, PEARL

vo

Born March 29, 1918, Newport News, Va.

Singing comedienne prominent on records and TV in 50s and 60s. Excellent entertainer. Educated in Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. Toured Pennsylvania mining towns as dancer, later sang in vaudeville. In early 40s performed on USO tour, in vaudeville and clubs. Also worked with Cootie Williams band. Stage debut in ST. LOUIS WOMAN in 1946, a hit even though show unsuccessful. Attracted attention with rendition of Tired in 1947 movie VARIETY GIRL. Appeared in other movies in later years: ISN'T IT ROMANTIC?
(1948), CARMEN JONES (1954), THAT CER-TAIN FEELING (1956), ST. LOUIS BLUES (1958), PORGY AND BESS (1959), ALL THE FINE YOUNG CANNIBALS (1960), THE LAND-LORD (1969). In 1950 Pearl played in two more Broadway musicals which enjoyed only modest success, ARMS AND THE GIRL and BLESS YOU ALL. In 1955 starred in HOUSE OF FLOWERS, again only modest success.

Performing style featured songs in comic,
novelty or philosophical vein, spiced with wit, timing and showmanship. 50s records enjoyed some popularity, especially Takes Two to Tango in 1953. In great demand on TV in late 50s and through 60s. Concert tours with husband drummer Louis Bell-son in U.S. and abroad. Acclaim from critics and public for lead in all-Negro stage version of HELLO, DOLLY, which opened in November 1967 for long run.
Own TV show for season in 1971 with husband Bellson leading excellent big band.

87. BALL, LUCILLE vo

Born August 6, 1910, Butte, Montana

Primarily a major TV actress and comedienne, later in career displayed talent in song and dance. Appeared in many movies, including important musicals in which she occasionally sang. Vivacious redhead with winning personality. Did not achieve stardom in movies. Often played the heavy or second lead. Entered early TV, co-starred with husband Desi Arnaz in series, I Love Lucy, beginning 1951. This series showcased Miss Ball's talent as comedienne, put her into TV orbit. Show ran long, was hugely successful. Miss Ball followed with specials, tried other formats after divorcing Arnaz. Top TV star from 50s into 70s. Starred in 1960 Broadway musical WILDCAT. In late 60s began working occasional musical sequences into TV shows with top guest stars, proved herself excellent entertainer.

✓ 88. BALLEW, SMITH vo bn g B

Born January 21, 1902, Palestine, Texas

Prolific freelance recording artist of 1929-36 period, on hundreds of records as vocalist with every type of band. Had high baritone voice, silken smooth. Consistently good singer on all types of lyrics. In great demand in record studios because of wide voice range and ability to sing songs in original key, requiring no special arrangements. Attended University of Texas. After college led band in Dallas-Fort Worth area several years, including long engagement at exclusive Fort Worth Club around 1923-4. Toured with band in years following. Ended up in Chicago in early 1927, disbanded. Briefly with Ben Pollack, Ted Fio Rito. To New York, freelanced. In late 20s with Meyer Davis, George Olsen, Hal Kemp, Sam Lanin as sideman-vocalist. Played in pit band awhile for Broadway musical GOOD NEWS. Became known to leading New York musicians, worked into recording scene, soon in demand as vocalist. Recorded under own name and fronted bands of varying sizes. Led band on key job at Whyte's Restaurant in New York early 1929. Band small semi-hot at times.

Several years later led smooth, larger hotel band. Early personnel at times included Dorseys, Joe Venuti, Eddie Lang, Babe Russin, Pete Pumiglio, Mickey Bloom, Mannie Klein, Jack Teagarden, Bunny Berigan. Glenn Miller served as chief aide and arranger 1932-4, when band included at times Chummy MacGregor, Jimmy McPartland, Ray McKinley, Harry Goodman, Stew Pletcher, Skeets Herfurt. Toured, often played Blue Room of Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans. In mid-1936 Ballew replaced Al Jolson as singing host of radio show The Shell Chateau, with Victor Young Orchestra. At end of 1936 replaced by Joe Cook and new format. In 1936 effective role in movie PALM SPRINGS co-starring Frances Langford. In late 30s starred in low-budget westerns. After 1936 seldom recorded. World War II defense work on west coast. In 1946 resumed movies with a few minor roles, including spot in 15-chapter western serial. Left show business for good in 1950, eventually settled in Fort Worth and worked for General Dynamics.

Early pianist and musical director, best known for association with Paul Whiteman in 20s and 30s as pianist-arranger. Played strong piano, pit-band type. Early 20s musical director of Benson Orchestra of Chicago on some Victor records. As pianist he played theatres, hotels and ballrooms. Composed rags for piano, including Knice and Knifty and Pianoilage. Recorded piano solos. Joined Whiteman band late 20s, remained to late 30s. In mid-30s often featured with band's vocalist Ramona. Provided many arrangements for band, appeared on many of band's records, as well as a few with jazz greats. By 1936 he was getting billing on Whiteman's Musical Varieties radio show. In 1940 began career in radio as conductor. Led bands for shows of Lanny Ross, Xavier Cugat, Jimmy Durante, Garry Moore, Rexall Theatre. Also worked on record sessions, backing singers. Continued active into 50s.

Born April 28, 1910, Detroit, Mich.

Excellent guitarist for small combo, adept at feeding chords to soloists, very tasteful style. As youngster also played alto sax, violin, bass and piano but early concentrated on guitar. Played locally, then moved to Chicago about 1930. Early jobs there included period with Erskine Tate. Joined violinist Eddie South's combo in 1932 and remained till 1939, except for intervals. Settled in New York in 1939. Jobbed about and in early 40s worked with Benny Carter, Leon Abbey, Herman Chittison, Cliff Jackson and Lester Boone. In mid-40s led own combo, also did studio work. In 1949-55 with Art Tatum off and on, his guitar complementing perfectly the work of the great pianist. In 1956 with Ink Spots, then rejoined Tatum and remained until Art's last job in October. In late 50s worked with Buddy Tate, also freelanced. Studio work in radio and TV, late 50s into 60s.

✓ 98. BARNET, CHARLIE

ts ss as vo cm B(CHARLES DALY BARNET, nicknamed Mad Mab)Born October 26, 1913, New York, N.Y.

Tenor sax jazzman, leader of a top swing band from mid-30s into 60s. Ardent admirer of Duke Ellington, his bands usually bore Ellington stamp. Colorful leader noted for his many marriages, several to his band vocalists. Barnet had wealthy parents, received good education including musical training. In 1929 at 16 led combo aboard ship on many trans-Atlantic, Mediterranean and South American trips. Played also in bands in New York, then went south with Beasley Smith, working his way to Texas and California. Upon his return to New York in early 1933, formed big hotel-style band. Played New York's Paramount Hotel Grill, Park Central Hotel, other top hotels in and out of New York. By 1935 band also featured hot style. Disbanded and tried a movie career briefly, playing small roles. Organized new band in 1936-7, did some vocals in this period, also used pioneer modern-harmony singing group, The Modernaires. This band boasted clean-cut swing arrangements.

In late 1938 Barnet formed outstanding big swing band. Scored at 52nd Street's Famous Door, moved on to other top spots including Palomar Ballroom in Los Angeles. Extensive recordings 1939-41. Solid band with outstanding arrangements, many Ellington-influenced. Barnet featured prominently on tenor sax, at times led sax section on soprano sax to achieve distinctive, beautiful sound. Judy Ellington was female vocalist, followed by Mary Ann McCall. Larry Taylor was male vocalist, followed by Bob Carroll. Billy May played trumpet and furnished arrangements, notably that of Barnet's all-time hit Cherokee. Skip Martin also did arrangements. The band had capable jazz soloists, although none of renown. Theme song was first Make Believe Ballroom, then Cherokee, then Redskin Rumba, later Skyliner. In 40s Barnet's vocalists included Lena Horne and Kay Starr for brief periods. Big instrumental hit records in Pompton Turnpike (1940) and Skyliner (1945). In 1949 he brought to fame Maynard Ferguson, fantastic high-note trumpet star. Barnet and band appeared in movies, notably SYNCPATION (1942), IDEA GIRL (1946), THE FABULOUS DORSEYS (1947), A SONG IS BORN (1948), MAKE BELIEVE BALLROOM (1949). Composer or co-composer of swing numbers featured by his band, including Leapin' at the Lincoln, The Duke's Idea, The Count's Idea, Dark Avenue, Murder at Peyton Hall, Mother Fuzzy, The Heart You Stole from Me, Lament for May. As band business became unstable in late 40s and 50s, Barnet changed band sizes and personnel, with inactive periods in between. Settled on west coast late 50s. Occasionally fronted combo or big band on special jobs, including Las Vegas and New York spots. In later years switched to soprano sax almost exclusively. Infrequent TV appearances. Rather inactive by late 60s.

Born November 24, 1905, New York, N.Y.

Died December 13, 1962, Burbank, Calif.

Composer of several all-time pop standards. Bit parts in numerous movies. Chief composition: I Surrender Dear (1931). Others of note: From Monday On and Mississippi Mud (1928), It Must Be True (1930), At Your Command, Lies, What Is It? and Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams (1931), It Was So Beautiful (1932), Little Dutch Mill and Let's Spend an Evening at Home (1934), Thrilled (1935), How Little I Knew and Naturally (1938). Grew up in Denver. Professional pianist at 14, took own band on Oriental tour at 17. In late 1926 joined Bing Crosby and Al Rinker to form Rhythm Boys vocal trio featured by Paul Whiteman. Wrote most of trio's special material. Trio became top attraction with Whiteman, appeared in 1930 movie KING OF JAZZ. After movie, Rhythm Boys left Whiteman, later in year worked with Gus Arnheim band at famed Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles. Group broke up when Crosby began career as single. Barris led a band briefly, managed by Richard Himber. In late 1936-7 fronted Bob Kinney band, also performed on radio show Jack Oakie's College. During 30s and 40s often seen in bit parts in movies, particularly those of old pal Crosby. Barris played small, slick, jive-talking personality, fit perfectly Hollywood's idea of typical band musician. Usually played role of rehearsal pianist, bandsman or band-leader. Better roles in HOLLYWOOD PARTY (1934), DOUBLE OR NOTHING and SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT (1937), SOME LIKE IT HOT (1939). In late 1943-4 accompanied comedian Joe E. Brown overseas to entertain troops. In early 1945 led big band on series of one-nighters, featured wife Loyce Whiteman on vocals. Made Alaskan USO tour in 1957.

tB

(WILBER ODELL BASCOMB)

Born May 16, 1916, Birmingham, Ala.

Died December 25, 1972

Trumpeter best known for work with Erskine Hawkins and particularly for solo on band's all-time hit record, Tuxedo Junction. Younger brother of tenor sax star Paul Bascomb, also with Hawkins. Brothers with Bama State Collegians band in 1932, later led by Hawkins, went to New York with band in 1934. Dud remained with Hawkins till 1944. Popularity of band soared with Tuxedo Junction in 1939. Public thought trumpet solo was by Hawkins, since he was always featured prominently, but it was actually by Dud. In mid-40s Dud and Paul were co-leaders of combo, then led big band. Dud worked two stints with Duke Ellington. In late 40s led own band, continued in 50s and 60s off and on. Also recorded, played in 60s with tenor sax stars Sam Taylor and Buddy Tate. Led bands backing singers. Still active into 70s.

106. BASIE, COUNT

p o cm B

(WILLIAM BASIE)

Born August 21, 1904, Red Bank, N.J.

Pianist-leader of a top big swing band from late 30s into 70s. Worked constantly during latter lean years for big bands.

Piano style simple blues with light swing riffs, emphasis on beat. In early 20s began playing locally, then in New York. Toured several years with vaudeville shows. Stranded in Kansas City in 1927, began working there as theatre organist. Joined Walter Page's Blue Devils there 1928-9, then Bennie Moten 1929. Remained with latter until Moten's death in April 1935, then he and Bus Moten led band several months to fulfill bookings. Worked as single, later led small combo. By early 1936 group evolved into nucleus for his future big band, with Lester Young (ts), Walter Page (b), Jo Jones (d), singer Jimmy Rushing. Band played Reno Club in Kansas City, its jobs there broadcast over local radio. Jazz critic John Hammond heard band, helped bring it to Chicago and New York in late 1936. Rough going and personnel changes for a year. Attained first success early 1938 at New York's Savoy Ballroom, later in year at Famous Door. Good stints followed in Chicago, again in New York and on west coast. By 1940 band established, recording extensively and playing top spots throughout U.S. Jazz public came to admire outstanding jazzmen in band. Top star Lester Young, his cool and swinging sax style far ahead of its time. Also on tenor sax was Herschel Evans, till unfortunate early death in 1939. Featured trumpet soloist Buck Clayton. Other important sideman through next few years: Harry Edison (t), Shad Collins (t), Al Killian (t), Joe Newman (t), Dicky Wells (tb), Earl Warren (as), Tab Smith (as), Don Byas (ts), Buddy Tate (ts). All-time great rhythm section remained constant through early 40s: Walter Page (b), Freddy Green(g), Jo Jones (d) and Basie (p). Helen Humes was good female vocalist.

Basie's swing tune One O'clock Jump, introduced in 1937, became top jazz standard, also served as band theme song. Basie composer or co-composer of numerous blues and swing numbers: Every Tub, Good Morning Blues, John's Idea, Jumpin' at the Woodside, Basie Boogie, Blue and Sentimental, Swingin' the Blues, Miss Thing, Don't You Miss Your Baby?, Riff Interlude, Panassié Stomp, Shorty George, Out the Window, Hollywood Jump, Nobody Knows, Sent for You Yesterday, Swinging at the Daisy Chain, Platterbrains, Red Bank Boogie, Tune Town Shuffle, The King, Mutton-Leg, Feather Merchant.

Band often on west coast in 40s. Appeared in several movies, 1943 a particularly busy year with CRAZY HOUSE, HIT PARADE OF 1943, TOP MAN, REVEILLE WITH BEVERLY, STAGE DOOR CANTEEN. In 1950 Basie disbanded, then organized small combo including star soloists Wardell Gray (ts), Buddy DeFranco (cl), Clark Terry (t). Continued with combo in 1951, then in 1952 formed another big band. This band achieved modern sound, featured swinging blues and jazz originals predominately. Became a top band, had regular bookings, recorded extensively on LPs. Stars in early and mid-50s: Paul Quinichette (ts), Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis (ts), Joe Newman (t), Henry Coker (tb), Marshall Royal (as, cl). Latter remained with Basie many years as chief aide and lead sax. In later 50s stars included: Frank Foster (ts), Thad Jones (t), Frank Wess (ts, f), Bennie Powell (tb), Joe Wilder (t). Blues singer Joe Williams featured several years. Arrangements by Ernie Wilkins, Neal Hefti, Johnny Mandel, Foster and Wess. Guitarist Freddy Green remained with Basie almost continually into 70s. Record hit in late 50s was unique jazz-styled arrangement of April in Paris. Band appeared in several movies in this later period, including CINDERFELLA (1960) and SEX AND THE SINGLE GIRL (1964). Also featured on TV occasionally during 60s. Basie and band remained popular into 70s, toured here and abroad.

107. BAUDUC, RAY

d cm B

Born June 18, 1909, New Orleans, La.

Famed dixieland drummer of 30s through 60s, notably with Bob Crosby band. At 14 Bauduc played drums in local combos, toured later (including jobs with Dorsey Brothers early band). In 1926 went to New York with Scranton Sirens, played with Joe Venuti and Fred Rich. Late 1928 joined Ben Pollack band, remained till break-up in 1934. Original member of Bob Crosby band, formed as corporation in early 1935 from nucleus of Pollack band. Also with Wingy Manone band on many record sessions 1935-6. As Crosby band rose to fame in later 30s, so did Bauduc. Considered a leading exponent of dixieland drumming. He and bassist Bob Haggart had hit duet with Big Noise from Winnetka, featuring Bob whistling between his teeth. Noise was a Bauduc jazz composition. Others, all featured with band or Bobcats (combo with band): South Rampart Street Parade, Smokey Mary, Big Crash from China, I Hear You Talking, Big Tom, March of the Bob Cats, Big Foot Stomp. Remained with Crosby till 1942, then in military service two years. In early 1945 Bauduc formed big band with Gil Rodin as partner-manager-saxman. Following year formed small combo with Nappy Lamare. With Jimmy Dorsey 1947-50, Jack Teagarden 1952-5. In later 50s and 60s freelanced with various dixieland groups, based mostly on west coast. Led own band at times, sometimes with Nappy Lamare.

Born March 8, 1911, Calvary, Wis.

Good clarinet jazzman of 40s, later developed into talented arranger. Born into musical family, gained early experience writing arrangements for their orchestra. Early job with Nick Harper in Milwaukee, later with Scat Davis. With Red Nichols early 1940, then Tommy Dorsey mid-1940 to 1943. Left Dorsey late 1943 for defense work on west coast. In early 1944 worked with Benny Goodman in movie SWEET AND LOWDOWN, in late 1944-5 with Red Nichols. With Benny Goodman late 1946 to mid-1947. Stints with Ray Noble, John Scott Trotter and Paul Weston. Settled in Hollywood and freelanced, concentrating on arranging for radio-movies-records. Arranged for singers Peggy Lee, Frank Sinatra, Gisele MacKenzie, Frankie Laine, Doris Day, Dinah Shore. In later years his work extended to TV and he remained active into 70s. Arrangements excellent on all types of music, particularly on swing numbers with modern influence. Kept pace with changing trends. Composed instrumentals: Forever Paganini, Forever Nicki, Harlem Mambo, Blue Iris, Blues at Midnight, Delta Roll, Guitar Mambo, Jasmine Jade, and more extensive works, Moviesville Jazz.

115. BECHET, SIDNEY ss cl B

Born May 14, 1897, New Orleans, La.

Died May 14, 1959, Paris, France

Jazz virtuoso on soprano sax, also on clarinet. Long career pre-1920 until death in 1959. Soprano sax style distinguished by wide vibrato. As youngster in New Orleans, played clarinet in bands of Bunk Johnson, Clarence Williams, King Oliver and others, also worked parades and toured with road shows. Left New Orleans permanently in 1917 with a show, ended up in Chicago. There jobbed with King Oliver, Freddie Keppard, Tony Jackson. Toured to New York with Will Marion Cook and in 1919 in Europe. Remained abroad 1919-21, played in London and Paris, began to concentrate on soprano sax. Back in U.S. late 1921. Through early 20s worked with Ford Dabney, Mamie Smith, several shows, Duke Ellington, James P. Johnson. A-broad again, in 1926 played in Russia and Germany, toured Europe in 1927. In 1928 joined Noble Sissle in Paris, later with Benny Peyton toured Europe again. Re-joined Sissle in New York late 1930, remained over a year. Later with Sissle 1934-8, with intervals away freelancing and sometimes leading own group. In late 30s with Zutty Singleton, Willie "The Lion" Smith. Through the 40s Bechet mostly led own combo, made several trips abroad. In late 40s had young clarinetist Bob Wilber as pupil and protege, worked some with Wilber's Wildcats group. In 1951 settled in France, returning occasionally to U.S. for engagements. Continued career abroad, touring many countries. Active until shortly before death. Prolific recording career with many top jazzmen.

116. BEIDERBECKE, BIX c p ar cm B (LEON BIX BEIDERBECKE)

Born March 10, 1903, Davenport, Iowa Died August 6, 1931, Queens, N.Y.

Great jazz musician of 20s and early 30s, far ahead of his time. An all-time great on cornet; clean-cut and powerful solo style with pure, beautiful tone. Also a capable pianist with leaning to advanced, modernistic chord structures. Idol of many musicians. A few years after his tragic death, Bix became a legend that endured and grew through the years. Played piano early, then cornet at 14. Played locally in all types of jobs. In 1921 enrolled at Lake Forest Military Academy near Chicago, but music interfered. Soon entered jazz field. Early 20s work included important late 1923-4 period with The Wolverines in Ohio and Indiana, which brought him attention in jazz circles. With Charley Straight in Chicago a while in 1925, then jobbed there. Joined Frankie Trumbauer late 1925 in St. Louis; in 1926 they played summer job at Hudson Lake, Indiana. Both joined Jean Goldkette in late 1926, remained about a year, were featured on band's records. Joined Paul Whiteman band, where both gained greater fame. Whiteman's arrangements, many by Bill Challis, often spotted Bix's cornet to great effect. Numerous recordings with Whiteman. Beiderbecke and Trumbauer also recorded frequently with jazz combos under own names. These records had great impact on musicians of late 20s, are still considered jazz classics. Their recording of Singin' the Blues drew particular attention.

Bix drank heavily and his health began to deteriorate, necessitating periods away from Whiteman in late 1928 and late 1929, when he left band permanently and returned to Davenport to convalesce. Freelanced in New York much of 1930 and early 1931 (with another interval back in Davenport). In 1931 was able to play only at intervals. Played several college engagements during final months. Considerable uncertainty and myth exist pertaining to Bix's last days. Apparently stayed with bassist George Kreslow, was long inactive except for practicing, collapsed and died of lobar pneumonia and edema of the brain.

The public knew little of Bix; his death caused consternation only among jazz fans and musicians. By late 30s his devotion to jazz, his drinking and eccentricities and mysterious last days were legends. His records became treasures, reissued many times. Composed several modernistic pieces principally for piano: In a Mist, Flashes, Candlelights. Also composed gutty Davenport Blues for jazz bands. Subject of definitive 1974 biography Bix: Man and Legend by Richard M. Sudhalter and Philip R. Evans.

Born 1914, Australia

Leader of The Australian Jazz Band, dixieland group, from 40s into 60s. Band originated in Melbourne in 1943, featured veteran musicians of area. To London in 1947. Big hit at Leicester Square Jazz Club. Band played primarily for dancers, with drive and enthusiasm. Enlivened British jazz scene. With dixieland revival in U.S. in late 40s and early 50s, recordings of Bell band well received here. Band continued to perform in Australia, on tour and in England. After dixieland revival subsided somewhat in later years, U.S. heard little of Bell.

120. BENEKE, TEX ts vo B (GORDON BENEKE)

Born February 12, 1914, Fort Worth, Texas

Well-known featured tenor sax soloist and sometime vocalist with Glenn Miller band in its most popular period 1939-42. Later a bandleader many years. Early musical experience locally, then with Ben Young band touring Texas 1935-8. Joined Miller, quickly attained prominence as a foremost asset of band. Tenor sax solos smooth and warm on ballads, very facile on fast-tempo Miller flag-wavers but not particularly exciting. Handled novelty and jazz-tinged vocals with band in distinctive, raspy voice. Career was enhanced by prominent roles in two movies built around Miller band, SUN VALLEY SERENADE (1941) and ORCHESTRA WIVES (1942). After Miller disbanded in late 1942 for military service, Beneke freelanced. Brief, publicized stay (five days!) with Horace Heidt band in early 1943, then entered military service.

In early 1946, by agreement with Miller's widow, Beneke formed band to perpetuate Miller sound and style. Billed as "The Glenn Miller Band with Tex Beneke," featured vocalist Garry Stevens. Band could also swing in modern fashion. Late 40s band recorded, played top spots, got good coverage via own radio series. By end of 1950, Beneke split with Miller estate, thereafter led band under own name. Good sweet band, still featuring Miller reed sound at times. Performed on TV in 50s, recorded, toured. Later in 60s

Beneke's activities dropped off, but still led band on special engagements, TV spots and concert tours into 70s.

124. BENNETT, TONY

vo

Born August 13, 1926, Queens, N.Y.

Popular singer of 50s and 60s, his jazz-styled vocals well regarded by musicians and jazz buffs. While still in high school Bennett had night club experience. In military service sang with army bands. Later enrolled in theatrical school, sang in small clubs occasionally. Heard by Bob Hope, who used him for New York stage engagement. Record of Boulevard of Broken Dreams won him good contract with Columbia Records in early 1950. Soon waxed hits Because of You and Cold Cold Heart, big hit in Rags to Riches. Appeared on TV in early and mid-50s. In late 50s Bennett's career faded a bit. Then did a succession of popular concerts, including one at Carnegie Hall. Pianist Ralph Sharon began long association with him as musical director for concerts and records. Career enjoyed great revival in 1962 with hit record of I Left My Heart in San Francisco, soon followed by I Wanna Be Around (to Pick up the Pieces). Busy round of TV and club appearances followed through 60s. Often performed with jazzmen or big swing bands like Count Basie's. Still active into early 70s.

125. BERIGAN, BUNNY t vo B (ROLAND BERNARD BERIGAN)

*Born November 2, 1908, Hilbert, Wis.
Died June 2, 1942, New York, N.Y.*

Outstanding trumpet star and bandleader of 30s swing era. Noted for treatment of famous theme song, I Can't Get Started. Trumpet style distinctive, with gutty and sometimes growling tone, wide range, sometimes a pause on a high note to use a lip trill. His always swinging, uninhibited style sometimes produced a fluff. As teenager played locally with various bands, including jobs with dance bands at University of Wisconsin (though not a student). In late 20s played in Philadelphia and New York. In early 1930 got first important job with Hal Kemp, made European trip with him. Upon return to U.S., freelanced in New York, did heavy studio and record work in early 30s with top jazzmen. Worked with Dorsey Brothers, Fred Rich, Benny Krueger, Smith Ballew. In late 1932-3 with Paul Whiteman, featured on trumpet solos. Resumed freelancing. With Abe Lyman 1934, Benny Goodman's early swing band in 1935. Busy in record work in 1936 as staff musician for ARC (American Record Corporation). Featured that year for a time on Saturday Night Swing Session radio show and with Richard Himber and Red Norvo. Led own groups at intervals in mid-30s and recorded with them. Two months with Tommy Dorsey at beginning of 1937 resulted in some famous Berigan solos, particularly on Marie and Song of India, which remain among most popular jazz classics.

In early 1937 formed first big band, powerful crew with excellent, swinging arrangements. Led band until early 1940 when financial difficulties forced him to disband. Outstanding jazz soloists were George Auld (ts) and Joe Dixon (cl). Berigan's trumpet featured on every number. Occasionally he "sang" in half-talking, uneven style. Band sported excellent personnel. Vocalists included Ruth Gaylor, Ford Leary, Dick Wharton, Gail Reese, Jayne Dover, Kathleen Lane. The band recorded extensively, got good radio coverage. Berigan rejoined Tommy Dorsey for about five months in 1940, then led own combo awhile. In late 1941 worked in Hollywood, recording much of trumpet work for movie SYNCOPATION (1942). Formed new big band with obscure musicians. Tough one-nighter schedule and heavy drinking contributed to Berigan's failing health. Finally collapsed, died in New York hospital several days later from severe hemorrhage. Music world stunned to lose this giant, whose reputation endures.

127. BERLIN, IRVING cm lyr p vo (ISRAEL BALINE)

Born May 11, 1888, Temun, Russia

All-time great songwriter. Most prolific of all. First known as mostly Tin Pan Alley writer of popular songs for the common people. Later in career did considerable work for stage and movies. Early in career collaborated with other writers; soon began writing both music and lyrics himself. Most famous songs: Alexander's Ragtime Band, Say It with Music, A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody, All Alone, Always, What'll I Do?, Blue Skies, Marie, How Deep Is the Ocean?, Say It Isn't So, Cheek to Cheek, Easter Parade, God Bless America, White Christmas. Came to U.S. as a youngster, family settled in New York. Father died early. Berlin left home at 14 to earn living singing and playing piano in saloons. Worked as singing waiter and song plugger. Changed name to Irving Berlin, began trying to compose songs. In 1909 hired as staff lyricist by Ted Snyder publishing company, became partner several years later. Collaborated with Snyder on early songs; they appeared together in 1910 Broadway musical UP AND DOWN BROADWAY. In 1911 first big hit, Alexander's Ragtime Band, a sensation, launched successful songwriting career. Wrote When I Lost You in 1912 when first wife died. Played vaudeville in U.S. and abroad. In military service at Camp Upton, N.Y., during World War I, wrote army show YIP, YIP, YAPHANK which featured Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning.

After discharge founded own publishing firm. In 1921 built Music Box Theatre with Sam Harris, wrote musical revues presented there. Wrote for many Broadway musicals. Most important: ZIEGFELD FOLLIES of 1919-1920-1927, WATCH YOUR STEP (1914), STOP! LOOK! LISTEN! (1916), MUSIC BOX REVUE of 1921-1922-1923-1924, THE COCOANUTS (1925), FACE THE MUSIC (1932), AS THOUSANDS CHEER (1933), LOUISIANA PURCHASE (1940), THIS IS THE ARMY (1942), ANNIE GET YOUR GUN (1946), MISS LIBERTY (1949), CALL ME MADAM (1950), MR. PRESIDENT (1962). Especially popular: his excellent scores for AS THOUSANDS CHEER and ANNIE GET YOUR GUN.

Wrote music for early sound movies, continued in 30s with popular scores for three Astaire-Rogers vehicles: TOP HAT (1935), FOLLOW THE FLEET (1936), CARE-FREE (1938). Excellent score for 1937 movie ON THE AVENUE. Big movie musical of 1938, ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND, featured many old Berlin favorites. Perennial hit, White Christmas, appeared in 1942 Bing Crosby movie HOLIDAY INN, for which he wrote long, outstanding score. Several of his stage successes converted to movies in later years. By late 50s and 60s Berlin largely inactive. Appeared on TV occasionally, sometimes honored in tribute specials.

Born May 25, 1926, Valparaiso, Ind.

Superior modern trombonist from early 40s into 70s. Good technique, warm tone, exciting soloist. At 16 joined Boyd Raeburn band in Chicago. With Buddy Franklin and Jimmy James in 1943, later in year joined Teddy Powell and remained until military service in August 1944. After discharge joined Stan Kenton mid-1946, remained off and on till late 1951. During this period attained some prominence. Interval with Boyd Raeburn in 1947 and several months with Benny Goodman late 1948-9. In 50s settled in Hollywood, became studio musician, worked in movies and TV. Freelanced in club jobs and recording work, remained active into 70s.

(BENJAMIN ANZELWITZ)

Born May 30, 1891, New York, N.Y.

Died October 20, 1943, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Popular bandleader in late 20s and 30s. Excellent M.C. and entertainer with great sense of humor. Attended New York College of Music, City College of New York and Columbia School of Mines. Played vaudeville as monologist-violinist several years pre-1920. Performed in act with Phil Baker for a time. In 1922 Bernie formed dance band, beginning 20-year career as bandleader. By mid-20s band had achieved some popularity, was recording and playing on radio. Pianist-arranger Al Goering remained with Bernie through most of band's life, proved important asset. Also in early band: Jack Pettis (sax) and Bill "Jazz" Moore (t). In 1928 Bernie had role in Broadway musical HERE'S HOWE. By early 30s the band developed into excellent outfit, sweet-styled but sometimes semi-hot. Altoist Dick Stabile featured frequently. Bernie began heavy broadcasting, own series as well as dance spot remotes. Deep, soothing voice and humorous remarks became well known. Favorite expression: "Yow-sah, Yowsah!" Two attractive theme songs: opened with moody It's a Lonesome Old Town, closed with Au Revoir, Pleasant Dreams on which he recited lyrics. He and columnist Walter Winchell kept up running "feud" through 30s which made good copy and formed basis for two movies in which they co-starred, WAKE UP AND LIVE (1937) and LOVE AND HISSES (1938). Dubbed himself The Old Maestro, referred to band as "Ben Bernie and All the Lads." Played Pabst Blue Ribbon radio show 1933-7, appeared in Pabst pavillion at Chicago World's Fair in 1933. Featured vocalist Little Jackie Heller 1932-3. Bernie also did occasional vocals in sly, half-talking manner. Band appeared in movies SHOOT THE WORKS (1934) and STOLEN HARMONY (1935). Other radio shows in late 30s and early 40s, including at times a quiz format. In later 30s band had more substance, swung occasionally due to arrangements by Gray Rains. Bernie well-liked personality; public and music world saddened by death in 1943. Co-composer of four excellent songs: Sweet Georgia Brown (1925), Who's Your Little Who-zis? (1931), I Can't Believe It's True and Strange Interlude (1932). Lesser songs: Holding My Honey's Hand, A Bowl of Chop Suey and Youey, After the Dance Was Over, Was Last Night the Last Night?, Ain't That Marvelous?, I Can't Forget That You Forgot About Me.

ts cm

Born September 13, 1910, Wheeling, W.Va.

Died October 31, 1941, Conneaut, Ohio, from injuries received in auto accident

Outstanding tenor sax star of 30s, especially known for work with Fletcher Henderson and Cab Calloway bands. Consistently excellent jazz soloist, warm tone and smooth-swinging style. Early dance work with Edwards' Collegians in West Virginia. 1929-30 with Sammy Stewart band on tour, ending up in New York. Freelanced there in early 30s, worked with Cecil Scott, Benny Carter and Charlie Johnson among others. With Teddy Hill 1933-5, attracted attention in jazz circles. Joined Henderson late 1935-7, became famous for solo work with band. Moved to Calloway band in mid-1937, where featured most prominently. Band had busy recording schedule, and many Berry solos with Calloway survive. Remained with band till death. Injured in auto crash while traveling between one-nighters, died four days later. Death at 31 tragic loss to jazz. In addition to many records with Henderson and Calloway, recorded widely with other groups. Composed Henderson's unusual theme song, Christopher Columbus, which in 1936 became popular number performed by many bands.

Born July 23, 1916, Macon, Ga.

Good jazz trumpet man in mainstream style; played interesting Roy Eldridge-style solos. Grew up in Cleveland, played in Ohio on early jobs. Landed in Albany, N.Y., played in that area 1933-6. With Fletcher Henderson late 1936 to mid-1939, then joined Horace Henderson till late 1940. With Teddy Wilson combo about a year, 1941-2. With Raymond Scott big band on staff radio 1942-3. In 1943 spells with Lionel Hampton, Don Redman, Benny Carter. Rejoined Wilson late 1943-4, with John Kirby mid-1944 till end of year. Most of 1945 with Eddie Heywood. Late 1945 joined Count Basie and remained till 1950 for longest period with one band. Much of 1951 in band backing blues singer Jimmy Rushing. Good period with Johnny Hodges 1951-4. Freelanced in later 50s; stiuts with Earl Hines, Cootie Williams, Illinois Jacquet. European tours with Sam Price 1955-6 and Buck Clayton 1959 and 1961. Settled on west coast in early 60s to freelance. In later 60s moved to New York, again to freelance. Active into 70s, mostly with small jazz bands. Sometimes led own band. Though Berry played with many bands and on many of their recordings, he came to public notice mostly via combo records led by himself and others in mid-40s.

*Born April 27, 1917, New York, N.Y.
Died May 24, 1965, New York, N.Y.,
from injury received in a fall*

Good jazz drummer in subdued but swinging style. Master of brushes. Best known as member early years of popular George Shearing combo. Early in professional career Denzil played good trumpet, jobbing in New York in early 40s. Participated in jam sessions at Minton's. Forced to abandon trumpet because of health. Worked awhile on piano and bass, then switched to drums in 1943. In mid-40s played with Ben Webster, Illinois Jacquet, Coleman Hawkins. Late 1947 began tour of Sweden with Chubby Jackson. With George Shearing combo 1949-52. Serious auto accident necessitated retirement from music in 1952-3. Late 1953 joined Artie Shaw's Gramercy Five for brief period. Freelanced in late 50s, and lengthy stay with Errol Garner. Career curtailed by illness in 60s. Hard-luck drummer suffered fatal accident in 1965: fell down steps in subway, died following day from skull injury. Composer of several jazz numbers: Move, Nothing but D. Best, Dee Dee's Dance, Geneva's Move, Wee, Bemsha Swing.

Popular dance band leader, particularly in 30s. Learned piano early and at 16 began extensive tours in vaudeville. Worked as song plugger, tried composing songs but was unsuccessful at first. Formed dance band in early 20s, then served as leader of Benson Orchestra for awhile, recording for Victor Records. Resumed own band later. By early 30s it developed into good sweet-styled band. Attained some prominence via recordings in 1933-5 and on radio. In 1934 on Walter O'Keefe show, late 1934-5 on fast-rising Jack Benny show. In later 30s popularity waned, though still had band into late

(LEON ALBANY BIGARD)

Born March 3, 1906, New Orleans, La.

Outstanding jazz clarinetist. Long career from early 20s into 70s. Noted for long tenure as an ace soloist with Duke Ellington band. Clarinet work distinctive and easily identifiable, with limpid tone and flowing style full of notes and inflections. Early in career played jobs on tenor sax, first important one with Albert Nicholas in 1922. After jobbing in local area, went to Chicago in 1924. There worked with King Oliver, began to concentrate on clarinet instead of sax. With Oliver into 1927. Later that year played with Charlie Elgar and Luis Russell. Late 1927 joined Ellington for 15-year association. As Ellington rose to prominence, so did Bigard and other key soloists. Enjoyed prolific recording career with Ellington and in ensuing years as freelance. Also recorded often with own groups.

After leaving Ellington in mid-1942, settled in California. Led own group awhile, then worked with Freddie Slack late 1942-3. Freelanced, mostly on west coast, led own band at intervals, did studio work. In 1946 with Kid Ory. In mid-1947 became an original member of Louis Armstrong All-Stars, small combo of outstanding jazzmen. Remained five years, left, rejoined 1953-5. In late 50s with Ben Pollack and Cozy Cole. Again with Armstrong All-Stars in 1960-1. After early 60s his activities slowed though occasionally played jobs into early 70s and toured with Condon-Davison Group. Composer or co-composer of several good jazz numbers: Mood Indigo, Minnie the Moocher, Rockin' in Rhythm, Clouds in My Heart, Minuet in Blues, Stompy Jones, Step Steps Up, Step Steps Down, Clarinet Lament, Saturday Night Function, Lament to a Lost Love and C-Jam Blues, most of which played by Ellington band. Appeared in several movies, mostly with Ellington band. Seen on TV occasionally with Armstrong All-Stars.

143. BISHOP, JOE

tu fl-h ar cm

Born November 27, 1907, Monticello, Ark.

Jazz composer of note and important figure with Isham Jones and Woody Herman bands of 30s because of arranging. Attended Hendrix College in Arkansas. Early dance band work, late 20's into 1930, including bands of Al Katz and Austin Wylie. With great Isham Jones band 1931-6. His arrangements, along with those of Gordon Jenkins, gave band its excellent ensemble sound and semi-swing style. Bishop's tastefully played tuba added greatly to tone and beat of band. When Jones band broke up in 1936, saxman Woody Herman headed corporation that formed first Herman band from nucleus. Bishop with Herman band through 1940 on fluegelhorn. Chief arranger of band's blues-dominated style. Arranged Woody's all-time favorite, Woodchopper's Ball, which he and Herman wrote. Retired from music awhile due to serious illness. More arranging for Herman in 1942, also freelance arranging, but illness a few years later forced retirement from music. Composed Blue Prelude in 1933, which enjoyed considerable popularity, also 1939's Blue Evening and 1934's Out of Space. Other compositions and arrangements, mostly jazz numbers, were Bishop's Blues, Bessie's Blues, Music by the Moon, Blue Lament, New Orleans Twist, Blues Upstairs, Blues Downstairs, Gotta Get to St. Joe, Blue Dawn, Midnight Echoes, Be Not Discouraged, Ain't It Just Too Bad, Big Morning, Indian Boogie Woogie, Blue Flame. Latter used by Herman as theme in the early 40s. Most Bishop compositions featured and recorded by Herman band.

b

Born c. 1918, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Died July 30, 1942, Los Angeles, Calif.

Star bass man with Duke Ellington 1939-42. Pioneer in elevating bass to position as solo instrument. Exhibited excellent tone, knowledge of harmonics, facility, expert musicianship. Career cut short by early death. Played locally at early age, including jobs with mother's combo (she was pianist). Attended Tennessee State College, worked in dance bands while there. Moved to St. Louis, worked with Jeter-Pillars and Fate Marable bands in late 30s, gained invaluable experience developing technique and style. Joined Duke Ellington in late 1939. Bass work with Ellington soon won acclaim. In 1941 health began to deteriorate. Another bass man hired to stand by and fill in as needed. Later diagnosis showed tuberculosis. Left Ellington in late 1941 to enter Los Angeles hospital, later transferred to sanitarium there. His death in 1942 cut short what promised to be great career. Became something of a legend in later years.

162. BOLDEN, BUDDY

c B

Born c. 1868, New Orleans, La.

Died November 4, 1931, Jackson, La.

Jazz pioneer, strong and colorful personality, first "king" of cornet in New Orleans (later followed by King Oliver, Louis Armstrong). Played cornet with exceptional power. His band played New Orleans parades and dances, starting around 1895 or earlier, and Bolden became very popular. Health deteriorated in 1907, committed to East Louisiana State Hospital (mental home). Remained until death. Information sparse on Bolden's jazz activities in those ancient days, and no phonograph records. Yet as first important figure in birth of jazz, Bolden became legend.

(JOSEPH BONANO)

*Born April 9, 1904, New Orleans, La.
Died March 27, 1972, New Orleans, La.*

New Orleans dixieland trumpet star noted for driving style and use of mutes. Jobbed mostly in New Orleans in early 20s.

Worked with Brownlee's Orchestra late 1924-5 briefly and with Jimmy Durante band awhile. Also brief period with Jean Goldkette in 1927. He and Leon Prima had band in 1928. Also worked with Monk Hazel. Continued jobbing and leading bands to mid-30s. With Ben Pollack band briefly in 1936. Stayed in New York 1936-9, mostly led own band (usually billed as Sharkey & His Sharks of Rhythm). At times personnel included George Brunis, Irving Fazola, Santo Pecora, Joe Marsala, Clyde Hart, Joe Bush-kin, George Wettling, Ben Pollack. Returned to New Orleans, later enlisted in service during World War II. Dixieland revival in late 40s brought Bonano to the fore for several years. For added novelty, Bonano featured himself playing old bugle. Continued into 50s, playing top spots in Chicago, New York, elsewhere. Active in 60s, mostly in New Orleans.

173. BOSTIC, EARL as vo ar cm B

Born April 25, 1913, Tulsa, Okla.

Died October 28, 1965, Rochester, N.Y.

Alto sax star with hot bands from early 30s into 40s. Attained greatest success with series of recordings of standards in melodious commercial style. Playing in early days marked by good tone and great facility. Early experience with Terrence Holder 1931-2. Attended Xavier University in New Orleans. In 1934-7 worked with Joe Robicheaux, Ernie Fields, Charlie Creath, Fate Marable and others. Went to New York in 1938, worked with Don Redman and Edgar Hayes. From late 1938-42 led own band mostly, had long run at Small's Paradise in Harlem. In 40s began arranging for bands including Louis Prima, Hot Lips Page, Lionel Hampton, Jack Teagarden, Ina Ray Hutton, Paul Whiteman, Artie Shaw. In 1943-4 had intervals with Hot Lips Page, Cab Calloway and Lionel Hampton.

In 1945 Bostic formed another combo and worked almost exclusively as leader from that point on. First hard-jazz group, combo later developed commercial style. By 50s many Bostic records good sellers. Recorded a few jump originals but scored with standard ballads played in heavy-toned, melodious style with good beat, appealing to rhythm and blues market. Leading hits included Flamingo, You Go to My Head, Cherokee, Temptation, Moon-glow, Cracked Ice. Record success enabled him to tour extensively. In late 50s out of music several years due to heart trouble. Tried to resume career on semi-active basis in 1959. In 1965 opened at Rochester's Midtown Tower Hotel, suffered heart attack and died two days later. Composed several jazz numbers; some of best-known were The Major and the Minor, Let Me Off Uptown, Brooklyn Boogie, Scotch Jam.

174. BOSWELL SISTERS

vocal trio
 (Connie, Martha, Vet)

All born in New Orleans, La.

Leading vocal trio of 1931-5 period, their style jazz-influenced, their backing consisting regularly of top jazzmen. As youngsters sang in mid-20s. Theatre and radio appearances in New Orleans, also vaudeville tours. In addition to singing, the girls played musical instruments: Connie-cello, Martha-piano, Vet-violin. Performed on radio in Honolulu, San Francisco and eventually New York, where rose to fame. In early 1931 began recording career with Brunswick, soon were recording heavily. For backing on records, sisters used small combos featuring jazz greats Joe Venuti, Dorsey Brothers, Mannie Klein, Eddie Lang, Bunny Berigan, Benny Goodman. Connie also made records as single in this period. Trio appeared on radio during early 30s as guests or on a somewhat regular basis, as on 1932 Chesterfield show (with Arthur Tracy and Ruth Etting) and Bing Crosby show 1934-5. Played England 1933 and 1935. Featured in movies THE BIG BROADCAST OF 1932 (1932), MOULIN ROUGE and TRANSATLANTIC MERRY-GO-ROUND (1934). Group broke up in late 1935 due to marriages of Martha and Vet. Connie, lead singer and principal arranger, went on to long and successful career as single despite handicap that forced her to perform in wheelchair. Occasionally trio appeared together again during next few years, as in 1937 on California radio show.

175. BOSWELL, CONNIE vo ar cel
 (later spelled first name CON-NEE)

Born c. 1912, New Orleans, La.

Member of famous Boswell Sisters vocal trio, went on to long and successful singing career as single. Competent on ballads, her jazz-influenced style at best on swing numbers with jazz backing. Polio in infancy, later aggravated by fall, forced her to work in wheelchair during much of her career. (See BOSWELL SISTERS for Connie's activities with trio.) After Boswell Sisters broke up in late 1935, Connie embarked on career as single. Recorded frequently but in more commercial manner than with trio, but still used good backing. Often on radio, regularly on some shows: Refreshment Time (1935-6), Ken Murray show (1937), Richard Himber show (1938), Good News of 1940, Bing Crosby & Kraft Music Hall (1940-1), Kraft Music Hall summer show (1941), Camel Caravan (1942), Connie Boswell Presents (1944). As single appeared in several movies: ARTISTS AND MODELS (1937), KISS THE BOYS GOODBYE (1941), SYNCOPATION (1942), SWING PA-RADE (1946), SENIOR PROM (1959). Active on records and radio into 50s, occasional TV thereafter.

176. BOTHWELL, JOHNNY as ts B*Born May 26, 1917, Gary, Ind.*

Alto sax star of mid-40s, first prominent with Boyd Raeburn band. Good lead man, distinctive soloist with sliding inflection, moody tone. Early experience with Max Miller combo in Chicago in 1940. In early 40s with Gene Krupa, Tommy Dorsey, Bob Chester, Woody Herman, Sonny Dunham. Made mark with progressive band of Boyd Raeburn early 1944 till mid-1945 (with interval away). Left Raeburn in July 1945 to lead combo, then big orchestra in 1946. Band had good arrangements featuring Bothwell's sax, good vocalists in Don Darcy and Claire "Shanty" Hogan, recording contract with Signature. In spite of assets, the band no lasting success. By early 50s Bothwell out of music business.

*Born May 24, 1877, Chambersburg, Pa.
Died December 29, 1941, New York, N.Y.*

Composer for early Broadway shows, later active many years in conducting. Educated at Franklin & Marshall College. Extensive musical training. Wrote scores for Broadway musicals THE MAID AND THE MUMMY (1904), THE VANDERBILT CUP (1906), THE HOYDEN (1907), MARY'S LAMB (1908), THE SILVER STAR (1909), A CERTAIN PARTY, THE RED ROSE and TEMPTATION (1911), A LONELY ROMEO (1919), OH, ERNEST! (1927). Contributed songs to THE SPRING MAID (1911), THE ROSE MAID (1912), BROADWAY BREVITIES OF 1920. Conducted for various record companies 1916-32. Conducted on New York radio 1928-34. Musical director of School of Radio Technique 1935-41. Music attained little popularity outside context of shows. Best-known songs Chinese Lullaby and When the Moon Shines on the Moonshine (1919).

179. BOWLLY, AL vo g bn

Born January 7, 1898, Lourenco Marques, Mozambique

Died April 17, 1941, London, England, killed by bomb in World War II

An all-time singing great, noted for many records with Ray Noble orchestra and other English bands through 30s. Smooth singing voice easily identifiable. Consistently first-rate performer on wide range of songs: novelty, torch, humorous or sentimental. Many buffs consider him best singer of 30s. Grew up in Johannesburg, played guitar and banjo and sang. Toured other countries with several bands, recorded in Berlin in 1927. Arrived in England 1928, worked there first with Fred Elizalde. In 1928-9 recorded with Elizalde and others. Extensive recording in 1930 with variety of bands. In 1931 became a leading singer in England thanks to many records with New Mayfair Dance Orchestra (directed by Ray Noble) and with Roy Fox. Regular band singer with Fox, appearing at popular Monseigneur Restaurant in London. In late 1932 Lew Stone took over nucleus of Fox band, featured Bowly as vocalist, with arrangements made especially for him. Bowly continued to record 1932-4 with Stone and others, including studio band now under name of Ray Noble. By mid-1934 his records numbered several hundred.

Noble came to U.S. in late 1934, bringing drummer Bill Harty and vocalist Bowly. With help of Glenn Miller, assembled band of all-star U.S. musicians and began recording with Victor in early 1935. Played New York's Rainbow Room in first important engagement. Bowly featured prominently on almost every record, also broadcast with Al Goodman. Spot in movie THE BIG BROADCAST OF 1936. Cut last U.S. records in late 1936. Returned to England in early 1937. Developed voice trouble and returned later to U.S. for delicate, successful operation, then returned to England. Busy recording schedule in 1938-9 with several top English bands, including Geraldo's. Also considerable radio work. With England at war, Bowly's recordings comparatively sparse in 1940. Teamed with Jimmy Mesene, their act alternately billed as Two Greeks and Their Guitars or The Radio Stars with Two Guitars. Played dates, entertained troops in camps, until Bowly's tragic death.

✓ 184. BRADLEY, WILL tb ar cm B (WILBUR SCHWICHTENBERG)

Born July 12, 1912, Newton, N.J.

Trombonist who rose to fame in early 40s as leader of good big swing band that featured boogie woogie. Not as widely acclaimed as other jazz trombonists but for all-around ability ranked among best. Beautiful tone, good range and technique, impressive on ballad and lead work. Multinote jazz solos with flowing lines. After early experience in New Jersey, Bradley went to New York in 1928. Freelancing included work with Red Nichols and Milt Shaw. Radio staff musician 1931-4 with bands of Victor Young, Jacques Renard, Nat Shilkret, others. With Ray Noble 1935-6, then more staff work 1936-9.

In mid-1939 formed big band, took name Will Bradley. Ray McKinley drummer and vocalist on jazz-novelty numbers, also co-leader though Bradley got most of the publicity. During 1939 and early 1940 band's typical white swing style attracted little attention. When started featuring big band boogie woogie, however, band caught on. Boogie woogie was pianist Freddie Slack's forte, and Slack and chief arranger Leonard Whitney contributed important arrangements in this style. Band had hit record with Beat Me, Daddy (Eight to the Bar). Other boogie numbers followed and were well received. Popular easy-swing arrangement was Celery Stalks at Midnight. Band's themes: Strange Cargo and Think of Me. Good jazzmen in Peanuts Hucko (cl, ts), Joe Wiedman and Herbie Dell (t). Slack left at height of his popularity, followed by Bob Holt and Billy Maxted. Steve Lipkins good lead trumpeter for most of band's career. Later good jazzmen Mahlon Clark (cl) and Lee Castle (t). Good vocalists in Carlotta Dale, Jimmy Valentine, Terry Allen, Lynn Gardner and others.

Bradley and McKinley differed over band's style. Bradley favored ballads over boogie woogie. McKinley left in early 1942 and draft caused other personnel changes. Later in 1942 Bradley disbanded, returning to studio work in New York, where active into 70s. In band on TV's late-night Tonight Show. Co-composer of Celery Stalks at Midnight and Strange Cargo.

Born March 16, 1927, Boston, Mass.

Trumpet star of mainstream jazz. Influenced by both traditional and modern styles, worked in all types of combos and big bands. Big brassy tone, melodic and swinging style. Worked in groups in Boston area in late 40s and early 50s. With Pee Wee Russell in Boston and Bud Freeman in St. Louis. Came to New York in 1954, made first recordings that year. Soon became for several years most-in-demand trumpet player with stars of dixieland and mainstream jazz. In 1955 role in PIPE DREAM on Broadway. Strangely, popularity ebbed in late 50s and 60s. Continued working and recording occasionally but not as prominent. Active into 70s. Formed quartet with guitarist George Barnes, played 1973 Newport-New York Jazz Festival and backed Tony Bennett in concerts.

Born July 23, 1910, New York, N. Y.

Leader of ideal hotel band with big ensemble sound and good beat. Music warm and danceable, created romantic atmosphere. Enhanced by Brandwynne's featured piano, with its simple and tasteful chords and phrasing. Top band in society circles for years. Early in career, played piano in Leo Reisman band. Pianist Eddy Duchin in band at same time for awhile. In early 30s left Reisman to become musical director for new singing sensation Russ Columbo. Also worked for Kate Smith. Later formed own band and opened at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Long engagements there for years. Theme If Stars Could Talk. In 1936 had excellent band with good trumpet by Louis "King" Garcia. Singers Buddy Clark and Barry McKinley on some records. Led band many years, with New York as main base. In late 50s played Las Vegas. Active into 70s in Las Vegas. Composed Peacock Alley, Stars Over Bahia, If Stars Could Talk, Little Rock Rag.

188. BREEN, BOBBY

vo

Born 1927

Died 1972 in England

Child singer-actor in movies of middle and late 30s. First prominent early 1936 when featured on Eddie Cantor radio show. Clear soprano voice of good quality for youngster. Radio work led to immediate stardom in series of pleasant but unimportant movies. Best featured songs in these were Rainbow on the River, Let's Sing Again, Put Your Heart in a Song, The Sunny Side of Things. Movie career ended when voice changed, later found it difficult to shake early image of boy soprano with winsome, childish appearance. Military service, World War II, led show troupe. In later 40s and 50s played clubs in U. S. and abroad in comparative obscurity. In late 50s tried rock and roll. Never able to recapture youthful popularity.

vo

(FANNIE BORACH)

Born October 29, 1891, New York, N.Y.

Died May 29, 1951, Los Angeles, Calif.

Star comedienne of stage and radio. Known for torch number My Man but mostly performed novelty and dialect songs. Later in career won great popularity portraying her Baby Snooks, radio's classic brat. Won amateur contest at 13, soon entered show business professionally. Played in burlesque and vaudeville, later played Palace in New York as star. Performed in ZIEGFELD FOLLIES OF 1910, which led to many other Broadway revues, particularly for Ziegfeld. Appeared in nonmusical plays WHY WORRY? (1918) and FANNY (1925). Starred in two early movie musicals MY MAN (1929) and BE YOURSELF (1930). Later movies THE GREAT ZIEGFELD (1936), EVERYBODY SING (1938), ZIEGFELD FOLLIES (1946). Career stayed in high gear during 40s thanks to Baby Snooks role. For many years her partner in this skit, playing Daddy, was talented straight man Hanley Stafford. Guest spots on radio in 30s. Regular shows included Ziegfeld Follies of the Air and Revue de Paree. In late 1939 began playing Baby Snooks on Good News of 1939. Continued on Maxwell House Coffee

Time in early 40s, starred on shows of similar format through 40s into 1951. Brice inspired title role in 1964 Broadway musical FUNNY GIRL, later starring vehicle for Barbra Streisand in 1968 movie musical.

195. BRIGODE, ACE

Died February 3, 1960

Leader of dance band called Ace Brigode & His Virginians from 20s into 50s. Early record hit Yes, Sir, That's My Baby in 1925, arrangement by Frank Skinner. Brigode's band did much touring, mostly in midwest and south, played countless one-nighters. Long runs in New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati. Modest recording output. Band's appropriate theme song was Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginny. By early 30s band had full ensemble sound, was good entertaining unit. Feature number at that time Goin' Home (Largo theme), with vocal choir of bandsmen and scat vocalist fitting in answering lyrics. Unfortunately, Brigode's better band of 30s never recorded. Band attained no great renown but worked steadily, well known in midwest. Disbanded and retired in early 1945. In late 40s and 50s in charge of publicity and promotion at Chippewa Lake Park near Cleveland.

196. BRITO, PHIL vo v
(PHILIP COLOMBRITO)

*Born September 15, 1915, Boomer, W.
Va.*

Good singer with smooth romantic style. Best period with Al Donahue band 1939-42. Began career at 17. Early singing job at Newark hotel, then local radio shows in New York. With Lloyd Huntley in Canada 1933-8 as violinist-vocalist, played radio shows there. Back in U.S., joined Al Donahue, began making a name via appearances, radio and records. In early 1942 went out as single on strength of hit records with Donahue, Come Back to Sorrento and The Shrine of St. Cecelia. Based in Cincinnati for club and radio work, later played other cities. Various singing shows on radio, sometimes on network. In mid-40s began recording as single. Good role in 1946 movie SWEET-HEART OF SIGMA CHI. Appeared on early TV. Popular 1950 record Mama, own composition. Active into 60s. Ill health curtailed activities in later 60s. Settled in West Orange, N.J. Began comeback in 1971.

197. BRITT, ELTON vo g cm lyr B
(JAMES BRITT BAKER)

*Born July 7, 1912, Marshall, Ark.
Died June 23, 1972, Pennsylvania*

Popular country singer and yodeler. Noted for hit record during World War II, There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere (1942). Combo backing him usually displayed excellent musicianship. Grew up in Osage Hills of Oklahoma, worked on father's farm. Learned to play guitar, sing and yodel. In 1932 talent scouts signed him for radio in Los Angeles. Also worked spots with The Beverly Hillbillies group. Soon popular in California. Several years later he went to New York with Zeke Manners, did radio network shows. After 1942 hit, other popular records: Chime Bells (1948), Candy Kisses (1949), Quicksilver (1950; with Rosalie Allen). Several country and western movies. Often on Grand Ole Opry in Nashville in 50s and 60s. Settled in New York, worked on radio and TV. Later lived on farm in Maryland, raised cattle, worked occasionally at music. Composer of Chime Bells; Maybe I'll Cry; Cannonball Yodel; Someday; Lorelei; Patent Leather Boots; Weep No More, My Darlin'; others.

Modern musician with mainstream roots,
extremely facile and inventive on valve
trombone; also capable pianist. Kansas City Conservatory of Music, then military service. Pianist with Orrin Tucker in 1950.
During 1951-2 pianist with Tex Beneke,
also worked with Ray McKinley, Louis Prima and Jerry Wald. Switched to slide trombone, then valve trombone in 1952
with Claude Thornhill. In 1953 with Terry Gibbs, Stan Getz, and late 1953-4 with Gerry Mulligan. Several tours abroad.
Again with Mulligan in 1957, later in year own group. In early 60s co-led group with trumpet star Clark Terry. Also worked with Mulligan. Several tours abroad. Busy musician, his playing a great asset to any modern group and enlivened many a record session. Extensive record output.
In late 60s and into 70s, studio work on

200. BROOKS, NORMAN vo
(NORMAN JOSEPH ARIE)

Born c. 1928, Canada

Singer noted for voice similar to Al Jolson's. Good entertainer with strong presentation on stage. Grew up in Montreal. In late 40s formed singing act with his sister, played Canadian night clubs. Brooks later became M.C.-singer at Toronto's Casino Theatre. Uncanny Jolson-type voice and style attracted notices, especially on U.S. TV shows in 1950. Brooks stated he sang naturally, did not try to imitate Jolson. Returned to Canada, had own radio show. Further engagements in U.S. led to recording here. Zodiac label formed to present him on first record hit Hello Sunshine. Further records popular. Busy in U.S. in early and mid-50s in night clubs and theatres. Some TV work. Portrayed Jolson in 1956 movie THE BEST THINGS IN LIFE ARE FREE (bit role). Career waned by 60s but continued to play U.S. clubs; popular at Beachcomber in Miami Beach. Mostly active in Canada during later years.

Born March 28, 1917Died March 21, 1967, Springfield, Maine, in fire

Dynamic trumpet soloist and lead man of 40s. Led good, short-lived big band. Brooks in prime had range and power, rich full tone: ideal lead trumpeter. Rather a child prodigy, at 6 playing trumpet in Salvation Army band. As youngster with Rudy Vallee about two years in early 30s, left to finish high school. With Ruby Newman awhile. Joined Hal Kemp mid-1939, won praise for trumpet work. Remained through Kemp's death in late 1940 and for a time when Art Jarrett took over band. Former Kemp singer Bob Allen led band in early 40s with Brooks as lead trumpet and musical director. In 1943-4 with Les Brown. Own band in 1945, with beautiful arrangements by John Brooks (not related). Band had long run at New York's Roseland for much of 1945. Despite excellent musicianship and Randy's trumpet, band failed to attain much popularity. Brooks disbanded, organized new band in 1949. Suffered stroke in 1950 that ended musical career, later died in fire in Maine home in 1967. Once married to bandleader Ina Ray Hutton.

Entertainer during long career, composer of two all-time popular songs, Some of These Days (1910) and Darktown Strutters' Ball (1917). Grew up in Detroit. Early in career worked as pianist in Detroit cafes, later in Chicago spots. Played ragtime piano style, around 1909 began composing ragtime numbers. Active career in vaudeville in U. S., Canada and England. Good entertainer with humorous style, adept at mimicry, often imitated Bert Williams. Wrote material for Nora Bayes, Al Jolson, Sophie Tucker. Roles in stage shows PLANTATION (1922), DIXIE TO BROADWAY (1924), KEN MURRAY'S BLACKOUTS OF 1949. In 50s less active in show business. Other compositions: Honey Gal, You Ain't Talking to Me, There'll Come a Time, All Night Long, Walkin' the Dog, If I Were a Bee and You Were a Red Red Rose, Jean.

203. BROONZY, BIG BILL vo g v cm (WILLIAM LEE CONLEY BROONZY)Born June 26, 1893, Scott, Miss.Died August 14, 1958, Chicago, Ill.

Generally considered best of early male blues singers, kept on singing into modern times. Strong voice and forceful timing. Composed many of songs he performed. Grew up in Arkansas. Military service, World War I. In 1919-20 first important job playing violin in Little Rock. Worked at railroad yard in Chicago in early 20s. In 1924 resumed music career as a sideline, changed to guitar, began to sing the blues. In a few years was working with leading jazzmen and blues singers. In early 30s began recording extensively under name of Big Bill, and through the years his blues records were many and popular. Played Chicago theatres in early 30s. Did nonmusical work in periods between music jobs. In late 30s critic John Hammond helped him obtain New York appearances and some recognition. In 40s Broonzy continued singing, touring, recording. In 50s helped by folk revival, toured Europe, enjoyed rather good LP sales. Favorite accompanying pianists Blind John Davis and Joshua Altheimer.

Born October 30, 1930, Wilmington, Del.

Died June 26, 1956, in auto accident

Great young trumpet star of modern school whose career cut short by fatal auto accident. Good tone and taste, fresh ideas, somewhat in style of earlier trumpet great Fats Navarro. Early jobs in Philadelphia area at 17. Attended Maryland State College in 1949. Auto accident kept him out of music about a year. Sidetracked into rhythm and blues field awhile. This period included stint with Chris Powell 1952-3. With Lionel Hampton in later 1953 (including European tour), but little chance to star. Career accelerated when joined drummer Max Roach as co-leader of combo. Acclaimed by fans and critics, hailed as the coming big trumpet star. Early death shocked jazz world, but his reputation endures.

206. BROWN, LES cl as ts ar cm B

Born March 14, 1912, Reinerton, Pa.

Noted leader of a top dance band from late 30s into 70s, working steadily despite decline of big bands in last decade. Rare solos with band in early days displayed pinch-toned clarinet with jazz feel. Educated at Ithaca College, New York Military Academy and Duke University. Musical start leading dance band at latter school in 1935-6, the Duke Blue Devils; played sax-clarinet and arranged for band. Band played summer 1936 at Budd Lake, N. J., recorded for Decca in fall, broke up early 1937. Brown went to New York, made modest living writing arrangements for publishers and bands, roomed with arranger Glenn Osser. Arranged for Ruby Newman, Isham Jones, Jimmy Dorsey, Red Nichols, Larry Clinton.

In late 1938 Brown formed big band, played New York's Hotel Edison and made records for Bluebird. Clean-cut, hard-swinging crew with good arrangements by Brown. Featured Herb Muse and Miriam Shaw on vocals. Good engagement at New York World's Fair in 1939. Featured clarinetist Abe Most in early 40s, trumpet star Billy Butterfield briefly, vocalists Betty Bonney, Ralph Young, Doris Day and saxman-novelty singer Butch Stone (who remained band stalwart through the years). 1941 record hit in Joltin' Joe DiMaggio. In 1944 recorded all-time hit Sentimental Journey. Both composed and arranged by Ben Homer. Joe Petrone another arranger for band. Brown adapted to new progressive sound in late 40s but never had far-out style, so band retained wide following. Arranger Frank Comstock mainly responsible for modern style of band; Skip Martin another arranger. Good soloists in these years and into 50s Ted Nash (ts), Dave Pell (ts, cl), Geoff Clarkson (p), Ray Sims (tb), Ronnie Lang (as), Don Fagerquist (t). Lucy Ann Polk vocalist for a time.

In 1947 band began long association with Bob Hope which continued into 70s. Based in California, band worked on Hope's radio and TV shows, went on overseas tours with Hope to entertain servicemen. Bandsmen also had opportunity to do studio work and freelance recording. Brown recorded steadily, in 1948 had an all-time instrumental hit record, I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm, great arrangement by Skip Martin. In late 50s band on Steve Allen's Sunday night TV show several years, providing excellent backing. Trademark: band's excellent playing of Allen's swinging theme, This Could Be the Start of Something Big.

Band never achieved first-rank popularity but, building over the decades, became something of an institution. Always maintained high level of musicianship and kept up with changing styles. One of few bands to survive decline of big bands. After early days Brown seldom played with band but became pleasant, gracious front man adept at directing stage presentations. Band used several theme songs: Dance of the Blue Devils, Evening Star, Sophisticated Swing, finally its well-known Leap Frog. Band tag line: Les Brown and His Band of Renown. Brown composer or co-composer of songs and instrumentals: Dance of the Blue Devils, Trylon Stomp, Duckfoot Waddle, Plumber's Revenge, My Number One Dream Came True, Bill's Well, Bill's Ill, We Wish You the Merriest and hit song Sentimental Journey.

207. BROWN, LEW

lyr

Born December 10, 1893, Odessa, Russia

Died February 5, 1958, New York, N.Y.

Lyricist member of famed songwriting team of Henderson-DeSylva-Brown of 20s and 30s. Collaborated with other composers before and after this period to amass array of song hits. Parents brought him to U.S. at 5. As teenager began trying to write lyrics and parodies. Collaborated with veteran composer Albert Von Tilzer for first success, 1912 hit I'm the Loneliest Gal in Town. In ensuing years enjoyed success as lyricist, collaborating with Von Tilzer and others. Began working with composer Ray Henderson in 1922; in 1925 duo joined by lyricist Buddy DeSylva to score for Broadway show GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS. Team remained together to produce outstanding body of song hits in 20s and into 1931.

(See biography herein on HENDERSON-DESYLVA-BROWN for details and song listings of songwriting team's career.)

Brown and Henderson continued together several years. Broadway shows GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS OF 1931, HOT-CHA (1932), STRIKE ME PINK (1933). Brown teamed with other composers during 30s, mostly for movies. By 40s activities ebbed. Writer-director of his last Broadway show CRAZY WITH THE HEAT in 1941. Other collaborators included Con Conrad, Moe Jaffe, Sidney Clare, Harry Warren, Cliff Friend, Harry Akst, Jay Gorney, Louis Alter, Harold Arlen, Sammy Fain, Sam H. Stept, Charles Tobias.

(JAMES OSTEND BROWN)

*Born November 9, 1906, Baltimore, Md.
Died September 20, 1963, New York, N.Y.*

Alto sax jazzman prominent in 30s and 40s. Clean-cut, jocular, jumping style. Played many instruments. At 12 played violin in local theatre; various theatre jobs later. In mid-20s concentrated on alto sax and tenor sax, worked local dances with several bands. Ended up in New York in 1927, freelanced there. In 1930-7 worked mostly with Charlie Skeets and Fred Moore. With John Kirby 1937-8. Own combo and freelance recording in late 30s, most productive period. He and Frankie Newton led band in 1940, then own band 1941-3. After early 40s dropped from big time due to ill health. Continued to lead band at intervals in Chicago and New York. Active into early 60s.

b cel

Born October 13, 1926, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A foremost bass man from late 40s into 70s. Strong and beautiful tone. Good knowledge of harmonics, with ability to play jazz solos. Active mostly in modern jazz groups. Gained early experience playing locally, then went to New York in 1945. Early work with Dizzy Gillespie, both in small combo and big band. Own trio at times in late 40s. Accompanied wife Ella Fitzgerald on jobs, including Jazz at the Philharmonic tours. Continued these tours in early 50s with Oscar Peterson trio, joining Peterson in 1951 and remaining through 1965. Took up cello around 1960. Devised cello easier for jazzmen to play, with finger board and tuning similar to bass and with special strings. Settled in California, active in studio work and freelance recording. Late 60s in TV bands, seen often and occasionally featured on Joey Bishop's late-night show. Active into 70s.

212. BRUBECK, DAVE

p ar cm B

Born December 6, 1920, Concord, Calif.

Avant-garde pianist who led a most successful jazz quartet from early 50s into 70s. Known for unorthodox modernistic chords and dynamics. Built solos to rousing climaxes. Used fugue-like patterns with star altoist Paul Desmond. At early age played locally in various types of bands. Attended College of Pacific and Mills College. Military service, World War II. After release led octet, then trio in late 40s without much success. In mid-1951 formed quartet featuring Desmond, quickly hit big. Brubeck and the brilliant Desmond worked together with great rapport, their music tasteful and exciting. Busy recording schedule plus many clubs, festivals and college concerts. Rated top combo of 50s, continued active in 60s. Desmond left group at intervals in 60s and Brubeck worked with various combinations of sidemen, including clarinetist Bill Smith and baritone saxist Gerry Mulligan. Brubeck maintained active schedule as combo leader-soloist-lecturer. Numerous overseas tours during 60s. Jazz works published in series of books.

220. BUCKNER, MILT p o v b ar B

Born July 10, 1915, St. Louis, Mo.

Swinging pianist and organist, pioneer in block-chord piano style. Grew up in Detroit. Studied at Detroit Institute of Arts, played in local bands. Brother Ted played alto sax. Arranging in early 30s. In Detroit through 30s. First big job with Lionel Hampton in late 1941 as pianist; became chief arranger. Arranged many of Hampton's featured swing numbers, including many versions of Flying Home. Other arrangements of note: The Lamplighter, Overtime, Slide Hamp Slide. Big number with band was his piano playing on Hamp's Boogie Woogie. Left Hampton in late 1948 to lead combo, later led big band. Again with Hampton 1950-2. In later 50s led small groups in clubs, later switching to organ to enhance popularity in lounge circuit. A happy performer, his swinging organ and bouncy personality delighted patrons. With Roy Eldridge combo awhile in mid-50s. Active into 70s. Buckner credited, along with Phil Moore, with development of popular block-chord or locked-hands piano style in early or mid-40s, later popularized by George Shearing.

227. BURKE, JOHNNY

lyr p

*Born October 3, 1908, Antioch, Calif.
 Died February 25, 1964, New York, N.Y.*

Lyricist with prolific output, mostly for movies. Collaborated with composers James V. Monaco and Jimmy Van Heusen on many songs for Bing Crosby movies. Grew up in midwest, attended Crane College and University of Wisconsin. Worked for publishing houses in Chicago and New York. Began composing in early 30s, by mid-30s concentrated on work for movies. Fabulous number of hit songs through the years. Lyric work outstanding, fit exceptionally well the light, airy, easy-going style Bing adopted in late 30s. Lyrics for Broadway show NELLIE BLY (1946), music and lyrics for DONNYBROOK! (1961). Formed music publishing company with Jimmy Van Heusen in 1944. Other collaborators: composers Arthur Johnston, Victor Schertzinger, Harold Spina.

236. BUSSE, HENRY t cm B

Born May 19, 1894, Magdeburg, Germany

Died April 23, 1955, Memphis, Tenn.

Trumpet player noted for theme and showcase tune Hot Lips. Distinctive vibrato on soft, muted trumpet work with Paul Whiteman and later with own band became Busse trademark. Came to U.S. in 1912. Joined Whiteman in 1919 and remained into 1928. Rose to some prominence as featured soloist with Whiteman, though not a jazzman. Unique trumpet sound easily identifiable. Famous solo on When Day Is Done. Co-composer of Hot Lips, Wang Wang Blues, Horn Tootin' Blues, Fiesta, Haunting Blues. In 30s led dance band in sweet style of day. Probably best and most popular recording then was Have You Forgotten (the Thrill)? in 1931. In mid-30s important stand at Chicago's Chez Paree boosted popularity. By this time band had developed light-swinging style with shuffle rhythm and mellow sound, very attractive to dancers and listeners. Muted trumpet still featured. Opening theme, Hot Lips, became well known; at times used When Day Is Done as closing theme. Substantial recording output. In late 30s he continued popular in Chicago, played New York, toured. Band frequently on radio, including own series. Appeared in a few minor movies. 1941 record of Stomping Room Only attained some popularity. Band continued through 40s and into 50s. Died in 1955 shortly before taking the stand at Peabody Hotel in Memphis.

237. BUTTERFIELD, BILLY t vo B
 (CHARLES WILLIAM BUTTERFIELD)

Born January 14, 1917, Middleton, Ohio

Trumpet star of 30s and 40s particularly. Played big-toned lyrical horn and relaxed jazz style. Versatile: excelled equally on ballads, swing and dixieland. Attended Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky., briefly. Left school in 1936 to tour with college band, later taken over by Austin Wylie. Stayed into 1937. Joined Bob Crosby in late 1937, won first fame. Spotlit on many Crosby records. Left in mid-1940, worked with Artie Shaw on movie SECOND CHORUS, later in 1940 joined Shaw band as regular, to early 1941. With Benny Goodman much of 1941 (and worked brief periods with him through the years). With Les Brown briefly in 1942, then New York radio. In military service awhile in 1945. In late 1945 formed big band, kept it through 1947. Bill Stegmeyer played lead sax and jazz clarinet, did most of arranging, was Butterfield's chief aide. Band made some worthwhile recordings. In late 40s and 50s Butterfield returned to New York studios and freelanced. Led small combos at clubs and for college dates, recorded actively as freelance. In late 60s became charter member of The World's Greatest Jazz Band, group of veteran jazzmen of traditional style led by ex-Crosbyites Yank Lawson and Bob Haggart. Butterfield quit band late in 1972, headed for New Orleans, returned on and off in 1973. With revival of Artie Shaw Gramercy Five led by Johnny Guarnieri in New York 1974.

243. BYRNE, BOBBY tb vo B

Born October 10, 1918, Columbus, Ohio

Excellent trombonist whose cool jazz solos in 30s were ahead of their time. Also played strong, beautiful lead. Grew up in Detroit. Father an accomplished music teacher, and Byrne studied many instruments but concentrated on trombone. Also studied music in technical high school, well trained at early age. When Tommy quit Dorsey Brothers band in mid-1935, Jimmy took over and hired Byrne to replace Tommy. Won quick fame with smooth, flowing, fresh, well-conceived jazz solos and confident, silken sweet work.

Left Jimmy Dorsey in mid-1939 to form own big band. Got radio coverage in 1940, recorded, became rather well known. Dorothy Claire featured vocalist; Stuart Wade joined later. Band's theme Danny Boy. In 1941 played important dates at Glen Island Casino and Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook, in 1942 had radio show. But band never hit big. Byrne entered military service in 1943. Band then fronted briefly by Jack Jenney, finally taken over by Dean Hudson. After discharge, Byrne formed another big band but success again eluded him. Disbanded, worked as trombonist in recording studios, later became record company executive. In 1953-4 he led a good small band on Steve Allen's late-night TV show. By 70s had quit music to become businessman. Lives in New Jersey.

Born November 22, 1911, Rockport, Texas

Died January 1971 in Texas

Good jazzman, featured on clarinet with big bands in earlier years, then on baritone sax with dixieland bands later in career. Played gutty swing style with excellent tone on all instruments. At 15 played jobs in Corpus Christi, Texas. Left Texas with brother Emilio's small band that featured swing, Latin and Mexican numbers. Emilio good swing violinist. They worked way to New York, scored at Nick's in 1938. Emilio returned to Texas. Ernie remained in New York, played with Bobby Hackett in 1938 and Jack Teagarden most of 1939. With Bob Zurke briefly late 1939-40. Joined Glenn Miller band in early 1940, remained till Miller disbanded and entered military service in late 1942. Caceres on records made by Miller during this period but seldom featured.

Freelanced in New York, in 1943 worked with Johnny Long, Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey. With Woody Herman in 1944 on lead alto, also played at Nick's with dixieland bands and did radio work. In military service awhile. Resumed career in 1946, freelanced in New York mostly with dixieland groups, began to concentrate on baritone sax. Heavy recording, many jobs at Nick's. In 1950-6 plum job in combo on Garry Moore's morning TV show, then jazz jobs at night.

Lucrative period. Continued to freelance, worked in early 60s with Bob Crosby and Billy Butterfield. In 1962 Caceres returned to Texas, settled down in San Antonio in semi-retirement. Occasionally played jobs in area with brother Emilio, led own groups.

252. CALLOWAY, CAB d vo cm lyr B
(CABELL CALLOWAY)

Born December 25, 1907, Rochester, N.Y.

Famed scat singer-bandleader of 30s and 40s. Exciting showman, led excellent big band with outstanding soloists. "Hi-De-Ho" scat singing his trademark, but handled ballads capably too. Grew up in Baltimore. Attended law school awhile in Chicago but quit when began singing in Chicago clubs. Worked stage revues, toured, worked with sister Blanche. In late 20s fronted The Alabamians in Chicago. 1929 role in New York revue CON-NIE'S HOT CHOCOLATES. Later in 1929 led The Alabamians at Savoy in Harlem.
Then fronted The Missourians, soon using own name as bandleader. First real success early 1931-2 at Harlem's Cotton Club, where his uninhibited style and hot band were naturals. By 1932 a sensation, aided by good radio coverage and records. Known for such numbers as Minnie the Moocher (theme), Kickin' the Gong Around, St. James Infirmary, Reefer Man, Eadie Was a Lady. Band in movie BIG BROADCAST OF 1932. Other movies: INTERNATIONAL HOUSE (1933), THE SINGING KID (1936), MANHATTAN MERRY-GO-ROUND (1937), STORMY WEATHER (1943), SENSATIONS OF 1945 (1944), ST. LOUIS BLUES (1958). Band recorded extensively over the years. Toured England 1934.

Cab famed for frantic gyrations in front of band, with long black hair awry, sometimes clad in white tuxedo. Handled most vocals, specializing in swingers and novelties. Almost overlooked: his distinctive way with ballads. Through the years band maintained high level of musicianship, showcased good jazz soloists. Star the great Chu Berry on tenor sax, with him from mid-1937 until death in late 1941. Other outstanding jazzmen with band: Eddie Barefield, Benny Payne, Doc Cheatham, Ben Webster, Walter Thomas, Claude Jones, Keg Johnson, Milt Hinton, Tyree Glenn, Dizzy Gillespie, Hilton Jefferson, Quentin Jackson, Cozy Cole, Jonah Jones, Shad Collins. Good singer June Richmond with band awhile in late 30s. Cab composed many numbers featured by band: Minnie the Moocher; The Scat Song; The Jumpin' Jive; Lady with the Fan; Zaz Zuh Zaz; Chinese Rhythm; Are You in Love with Me Again?; That Man's Here Again; Peck-a-Doodle-Do; I Like Music; Rustle of Swing; Three Swings and Out; Are You Hep to the Jive?; Boog-It; Come On with the "Come On"; Silly Old Moon; Sunset; Rhapsody in Rhumba; Are You All Reet?; Hi-De-Ho Man; Levee Lullaby; Hot Air; Geechy Joe; Let's Go, Joe. Chief collaborators Irving Mills, Clarence Gaskill, Buck Ram, Andy Gibson, Jack Palmer, Paul Mills. Broke up band in 1948, led new band briefly in 1951.

George Gershwin wrote role of Sportin' Life in famed opera PORGY AND BESS with Cab in mind. Cab didn't play in original 1935 show but during 1952-4 played the role in road show version touring U.S.

and abroad, returning to role occasionally in later years. In later 50s and 60s less active, occasionally led combo or orchestra or played as single, sometimes on TV. In late 60s played in all-Negro version of show HELLO, DOLLY. One of most successful and best-liked bandleaders, his contributions to popular and jazz music of major importance in 30s and 40s.

Bandleader from mid-20s into 40s. 20s band played semi-hot style, many arrangements by Candullo himself. Extensive recording during this period. Jazzman Red Nichols believed to play on many Candullo records. Information on personnel almost completely lacking, but solos performed by capable jazzmen. Band based in New York mostly. Later in 30s Candullo fronted hotel-type band, in mid-30s played Rainbow Grill, Manhattan. In late 30s played outside New York, including long engagements in Florida.

259. CANOVA, JUDY

vo

Born November 20, 1916, Jacksonville, Fla.

Popular hillbilly singer-comedienne of late 30s and 40s, active on radio and in movies. Could sing straight but usually affected cornball style and high voice gyrations for laughs. Sang on Florida radio at 12. Attended Cincinnati Conservatory of Music to study for opera, gave it up. In 1934 with sister Annie and brother Zeke to New York, landed job in Greenwich Village club doing mountaineer act. Judy star of act, later won small role in Broadway musical CALLING ALL STARS. Show opened in December 1934, ran only 36 performances. Good role in ZIEGFELD FOLLIES OF 1936, which opened in January 1936 and had good run of 115 performances. Later in 1936 Canovas scored with antics and singing on Paul Whiteman radio show. Early 1937 starred on Rippling Rhythm Revue on radio, with Shep Fields band and Frank Parker. Here Judy became well known as comic hill-billy singer also adept at comic dialogue. Later Canovas broke up and Judy continued as single. In mid-1939 starred in successful Broadway musical YOKEL BOY. Had appeared in a few movies previously but in 40s movie career flourished, continued through 50s. Had long-running radio show, 1943-53, with attractive theme song Go to Sleepy, Little Baby which she helped compose. In later years less active in show business, occasionally appeared on TV.

(EDDIE ISRAEL ISKOWITZ, nicknamed Banjo Eyes)

Born January 31, 1892, New York, N.Y.

Died October 10, 1964, Hollywood, Calif.

All-time great entertainer. Noted for talent as comedian, soft vaudeville-type singing, light, skipping dance steps. Nicknamed Banjo Eyes because of wide, expressive eyes. Parents immigrants from Russia. Eddie orphaned at early age, raised by grandmother. As child appeared in amateur contests. Joined Gus Edwards troupe of youngsters and played vaudeville; George Jessel in same troupe. Later toured with Lila Lee in Cantor & Lee act. Became important vaudeville star, featured blackface routine, played New York's Palace Theatre. Reached stardom with performances on Broadway in ZIEGFELD FOLLIES OF 1917-1918-1919 (and later in 1923 and 1927). Appeared in shows BROADWAY BREVITIES OF 1920, MIDNIGHT ROUNDERS OF 1921, MAKE IT SNAPPY (1922). Starred in KID BOOTS (1924) and WHOOPEE (1928). Last Broadway show BANJO EYES (1942). Associated with songs You'd Be Surprised, Dinah, Ida, That's the Kind of a Baby for Me, My Baby Just Cares for Me, Makin' Whoopee, Now's the Time to Fall in Love and his most famous, If You Knew Susie. Lost heavily in 1929 stock market crash, renewed efforts in show business.

Began Hollywood career in 1930, made popular movies in 30s and 40s. On early radio in 20s, late 1931 began own big show for Chase & Sanborn. Show quickly projected Cantor into top popularity of career. Show featured and made famous bandleader Dave Rubinoff (billed as Rubinoff & His Violin), also featured comic Bert Gordon (The Mad Russian) and later Parkyakarkus. Show's well-known theme song, One Hour with You, sung dramatically at each closing by Cantor. In comic routines Cantor quipped frequently about wife Ida and five daughters. Radio shows of varying formats in 30s and 40s. Helped child singers Deanna Durbin and Bobby Breen attain stardom in mid-30s, later helped singers Dinah Shore and Eddie Fisher early in careers. Radio shows in 50s, and in 1961 had show Ask Eddie Cantor. On TV with own shows in early 50s, but heart trouble curtailed activity in new medium, eventually caused retirement. 1953 movie THE EDDIE CANTOR STORY featured Keefe Brasselle effectively playing title role, Cantor lyricist for several songs including Merrily We Roll Along, There's Nothing Too Good for My Baby, Get a Little Fun Out of Life, The Old Stage Door, It's Great to Be Alive. Wrote autobiographies My Life Is in Your Hands and Take My Life; other books: As I Remember Them; Ziegfeld, the Great Glorifier; The Way I See It and Caught Short!.

(THOMAS CAREY)

Born 1891, New Orleans, La.

Died September 3, 1948, San Francisco, Calif.

Jazz trumpet man whose career started about 1914 and continued to 40s, with time away from music. Much of career spent with Kid Ory. Early experience in parade and band work in New Orleans before joining Ory in 1914. Toured with various bands and road shows, played in Chicago. With Wade Whaley in New Orleans in 1918. To California in 1919 to join Ory again. Took over band in 1925 when Ory left. Remained in California, jobbing and leading bands at intervals. Music became sideline as he worked at other jobs to make ends meet. He and Ory reunited in 1944, continued together until late 1947. Carey then to New York, led group of veteran jazzmen on a few recordings. Returned to California, resumed musical activities there for several months until death. Played good traditional trumpet but unfortunately left few records for posterity.

262. CARLE, FRANKIE

p ar cm B

Born March 25, 1903, Providence, R.I.

Well-known pianist-composer of late 30s and bandleader of 40s and 50s. Best-known composition Sunrise Serenade became popular standard. Pianist with light and buoyant touch, always melody first but embellished it slightly with strong rhythm—a very attractive style. As youngster tutored by uncle Nicholas Colangelo, famed pianist. Professional by 18, accompanied vaudeville performers and played in dance bands. Early job with Ed J. McEnelly band. In mid-30s joined Mal Hallett for four years, with interval leading own group around 1935. Was leading own band again in 1939 when joined Horace Heidt in July, remained until late 1943. Featured by Heidt, also received plaudits for hit songs: Georgianna (1937), Sunrise Serenade and Shadows (1939), Falling Leaves and A Lover's Lullaby (1940), Oh, What It Seemed to Be (1946), Roses in the Rain, Dreamy Lullaby and Moonlight Whispers (1947). Lesser numbers: Carle Boogie, Lollipop Ball, Sunrise Boogie, Sunrise in Napoli, Blue Fantasy, I Didn't Know, The Golden Touch, The Apple Valley Waltz.

In early 1944 organized big band, successful through 40s and into 50s. Good band, theme song Sunrise Serenade. Featured Carle's piano predominately. First vocalists Betty Bonney and Phyllis Lynne. Carle's daughter, Marjorie Hughes, sang with band several years. Excellent singer, made hit record with Carle in 1946, Oh, What It Seemed to Be. Gregg Lawrence good singer in later 40s. Band had radio series, recorded often. Carle also recorded frequently with only his piano and rhythm. By late 40s band was excellent, vastly underrated. Great ensemble sound and solid beat, outstanding arrangements of ballads with light swing, good sax section. Appeared in 1949 movie MY DREAM IS YOURS. In later 50s Carle ceased as regular bandleader, worked still less in 60s. On occasion led small groups or bands, made recordings. Rare appearances on TV. Spot on Merv Griffin's TV show in 1971 revealed that Carle retained amiable professional manner and deft touch on keyboard. Returned to tour with Big Band Calvalcade show late 1973-early 1974.

Top jazz baritone sax soloist, famed as stalwart in Duke Ellington band over 40 years. Rich tone and powerful, ambling style with Ellington early established him as all-time great. As youngster, Carney played in Boston bands. Heard by Duke Ellington and hired in late 1926. Association, practically unparalleled for longevity in jazz field, extended almost continuously through 1973 (with brief intervals away from band). Key Ellington soloist through the years. Also heavy freelancing on recordings with other jazz groups, including other stars of Ellington's band.

Born June 18, 1918

Big-voiced baritone with dance bands, later on musical stage. At start of career sang on radio commercials, later on radio shows. Joined Charlie Barnet band in late 1940 and remained for a year. Military service, World War II. After discharge with Jimmy Dorsey 1946-7. Freelance recording, career as single. Strong voice was always held under control so as not to overpower a dance band (similar case to that of Vaughn Monroe). In later years turned to stage where voice heard to best advantage. Performed in stock and stage presentations through the years. In early 60s appeared as guest vocalist on late-night talk shows. Active into 70s, starring in road version of FIDDLER ON THE ROOF in 1971.

Original members:

Alvin Pleasant (A.P.) Carter, born Maces Springs, Va.

Sara (his wife), born July 21, 1889, Wise County, Va.

Maybelle Carter (his sister-in-law), born May 10, 1909, Nickelsville, Va.

Famed country singing group, influential in development of country music in late 20s and early 30s. Established style of close-harmony singing, with Maybelle's Autoharp providing unique accompaniment. Trio formed in 1926, worked in Maces Springs and general area at all types of jobs and social events. After auditioning for talent scout, made first recordings in Bristol, Tenn., in 1927. Records well received; recorded steadily through the years. Made many personal appearances. Later in 30s A.P. and Sara divorced but trio still worked together. In late 30s children Jeanette and Joe joined group. In Del Rio, Texas, 1938-41, performed on Mexican radio station, later on Charlotte, N.C., station. In 1943 group broke up. Maybelle then formed new group with daughters June, Helen and Anita, during 1943-8 performed on radio in Richmond, Va. Later performed on Grand Ole Opry in Nashville. Group broke up in 50s but Maybelle continued to appear on Grand Ole Opry into 60s. In 70s on Johnny Cash's TV show with three daughters; June married Johnny Cash.

284. CARTER, BENNY

as ts cl t tb p ar cm B

Born August 8, 1907, New York, N.Y.

An all-time great alto sax star as soloist and section leader, versatile musician on many instruments, excellent arranger, masterful at scoring for reed sections. Led band in 30s and 40s. Great facility on alto sax, with beautiful tone and most tasteful solo style. Essentially from mainstream jazz school, absorbed some modern jazz elements into style in later years. As teenager played jobs in small clubs. In 1924 worked with June Clark, Lois Deppe and Earl Hines among others. Intended to enroll at Wilberforce College in Ohio, instead left with Horace Henderson and the college band to play in New York. Worked with Fletcher Henderson brief periods, with Charlie Johnson 1927-8 over a year. Toured with own band late 1928-9. Important year with Fletcher Henderson 1930-1 during which also arranged for band. With Chick Webb briefly in 1931; later arranged Liza as showcase for Webb's drumming. In mid-1931 joined famed McKinney's Cotton Pickers for about a year. Own band 1932-4. During early 30s arranged for McKinney's Cotton Pickers, Duke Ellington, Fletcher Henderson, Teddy Hill, Benny Goodman. In late 1934-5 briefly with Fletcher Henderson and Willie Bryant. Late in 1935 to Europe, joined Willie Lewis in Paris. 1936-8 in London as staff arranger for Henry Hall's BBC band. During these two years Carter toured Europe, hailed by jazz musicians and fans.

Returned to U.S. in mid-1938. Led band from 1939 into early 40s. As bandleader Carter never real success. Bands suffered frequent changes in personnel. Recorded with his bands and freelance through the years. At times in 40s led combo. Played mostly in New York and on west coast, finally settled on west coast in mid-40s. Continued active arranging schedule; at one stretch in 1942 arranged for Lucky Strike Hit Parade radio show. In later 40s heavy studio work as musician-arranger-composer. In 50s many LPs, recording with top jazz stars, sometimes as leader. In 50s and 60s composed and scored for TV shows. Freelanced through 60s and into 70s in all types of music, occasionally fronted band on special dates such as 1972 Newport-New York Jazz Festival.

In addition to many compositions for movies and TV, wrote numerous jazz tunes including Hot Toddy, Shoot the Works, Everybody Shuffle, Dream Lullaby, Take My Word (also known as Lonesome Nights), When Lights Are Low, My Favorite Blues, Nightfall, Devil's Holiday, Kansas City Suite, Deep South Mood, Symphony in Riffs, Harlem Mood, Manhattan Mood, Hollyridge Drive, I'm in the Mood for Swing, Malibu. Also composed good bluesy ballads: Blues in My Heart (1931), Blue Interlude (1933), Melancholy Lullaby (1939), Hurry Hurry (1943). Band in 1943 movie THOUSANDS CHEER. Carter in 1952 movie THE SNOWS OF KILIMANJARO. Active in film composing in later years.

(CHARLES RICHARD CATHCART)

Born November 6, 1924, Michigan City, Ind.

Excellent trumpet soloist in the Bix Beiderbecke tradition—beautiful tone, fresh ideas, easy swing. At best in dixieland groups. From musical family; three brothers professional musicians. Early start with name bands, first big job with Ray McKinley several months in 1942. With Alvino Rey late 1942-3. In mid-1943 entered military service. After discharge with Bob Crosby most of 1946. Studio work at MGM for three years. With Ben Pollack group 1949-50 and Ray Noble 1950-1. In mid-1951 on Jack Webb's radio show, Pete Kelly's Blues, as member of outstanding dixieland band. In 1951 led group in Los Angeles. In 1952 on California TV with Frank DeVol. Good run in mid-50s on Bob Crosby's daytime TV show, also sang with Modernaires awhile there and later. In 1955 on soundtrack of movie PETE KELLY'S BLUES, did trumpet work for Jack Webb. In 1959 musical director of short-lived TV series, Pete Kelly's Blues. During 50s considerable freelance recording with leading west coast dixieland stars. Several years in 60s with Lawrence Welk on ballroom jobs, concerts and weekly TV show, often featured on trumpet or in vocal group. Left when Lennon Sisters left (had married Peggy Lennon), and 1969-70 was musical director on Lennons' TV series. Active into 70s.

295. CAUSER, BOB

There is considerable myth about this person. Many good hotel-band records issued under this name during 1931-6 period. Some undoubtedly by Freddy Martin band featuring Martin's distinctive lead tenor sax and vocalists Elmer Feldkamp and Terry Shand. Majority by studio groups of excellent musicians, many with good hot solos. Other vocalists on these records include Chick Bullock, Dick Robertson, Tony Sacco, Smith Ballew, Johnny Hauser, Buddy Clark. Bunny Berigan, Dorseys, Mannie Klein, other jazzmen said to appear on some records. One theory: Bob Causer was booking agent and/or hotel manager in Ithaca, N.Y. (home of Cornell University—hence name Bob Causer & His Cornellians on some records), and name was used on records in return for bookings. Band news in music magazines listed Bob Causer band playing at Westwood Supper Club, Richmond, Va., 1938-9, and in Syracuse, N.Y., in mid-1939. Hence there apparently was a real Bob Causer band, at least in late 30s.

296. CAVALLARO, CARMEN

p ar cm B

Born May 6, 1913, New York, N.Y.

Flashy society-style pianist, rather flowery but with excellent touch and technique, beautiful chords. Leader of good sweet-styled dance band many years. As youngster had considerable training as classical pianist, played many concerts in U.S. and abroad. Then dance jobs, long period with Al Kavelin 1933-7 where billed simply as Carmen and featured prominently with band. Later did some arranging for band. Joined Rudy Vallee in 1937 for about a year, then with Abe Lyman in 1938 for awhile. Freelanced, worked with Enric Madriguera, Meyer Davis dance units, and on radio. In 1939 led five-piece combo at St. Louis hotel. By mid-1940 to Detroit with eight-piece group, then in late 1940 to New York. Popular wherever he played, and recordings helped. In 40s played top hotels in big cities, including long stays in Chicago and New York, and appeared in many theatres. Late 1943-4 change to swing band failed. In mid-1944 formed band in former style. In several movies: HOLLYWOOD CANTEEN (1944), OUT OF THIS WORLD and DIAMOND HORSESHOE (1945), THE TIME, THE PLACE AND THE GIRL (1946). In late 40s had Sunday afternoon radio show The Schaeffer Parade. Recorded heavily both with band and as soloist with rhythm section. In 1956 did an excellent job on soundtrack of movie THE EDDY DUCHIN STORY, imitating Duchin piano style (with Tyrone Power portraying Duchin). Active in 60s, in later years concentrating on concerts. Composer of several songs, including Wanda, While the Nightwind Sings, Masquerade Waltz.

302. CHALLIS, BILL p ar B*Born July 8, 1904, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.*

Talented arranger, principally in late 20s to 40s, influential in development of big band arranging. Gained most fame during period with star-studded Paul Whiteman band of late 20s. Outstanding arrangements fashioned good ensemble sound with nice shadings and interludes. Could orchestrate for large, rather ponderous band such as Whiteman's and showcase jazzmen effectively. Attended Bucknell University. With Dave Harmon band in 1925 as pianist-arranger. Joined Jean Goldkette in late 1926 for a year; his arrangements greatly improved band. Then joined Whiteman early 1928, became his most important arranger. Scoring gave jazz greats Bix Beiderbecke and Frankie Trumbauer good backgrounds for jazz solos, gave equally good backing to vocalists Bing Crosby, Jack Fulton and Rhythm Boys. In late 20s arranged for Trumbauer record sessions, Cass Hagan and others. After Whiteman band completed movie THE KING OF JAZZ, Challis left band in spring of 1930. Became freelance arranger in New York and in early 30s wrote for Nat Shilkret, Glen Gray, Dorsey Brothers, and Willard Robison radio show. Some conducting on radio; in 1935-6 had show, Bill Challis and His Music. During later 30s wrote arrangements for Fletcher Henderson, Richard Himber, Lennie Hayton, Claude Hopkins and others. In 40s assignments for Glen Gray and Jerry Wald. Continued arranging in 50s and 60s, although less active.

312. CHESTER, BOB

ts cm B

Born March 20, 1908, Detroit, Mich.

Leader of excellent, underrated band in late 30s and 40s. In earlier years used Glenn Miller reed sound frequently, but band drove harder than Miller's. Born into wealthy family, educated at universities of Detroit and Dayton. In early and mid-30s played sax with Russ Morgan, Ben Pollack, Paul Specht, Arnold Johnson, Ben Bernie, Irving Aaronson. In middle and late 30s at various times led hotel-style band in Detroit. 1939 band built along swing lines, with excellent arrangements. Handled ballads beautifully in sweet-swing style. Excellent vocalists in Dolores O'Neill, later Betty Bradley, Bob Haymes, Bill Darnell. Alec Fila lead trumpet awhile. Band's first theme Slumber. Later theme, Sunburst, composed by Chester (who also composed The Octave Jump, featured by band). By early 40s band dropped Miller sound. During this period personnel at times included Joe Harris (tb), Johnny Bothwell (as), John LaPorta (as), Bill Harris (tb), Herbie Steward (as). Mid-1944-5 Chester was out of band business about a year, came back in late 1945, continued into early 50s (with period as disc jockey in Detroit in 1948-9). Lou Gardner, good vocalist, featured in later 40s. Chester now successful in automotive business in Detroit.

Born September 12, 1888, Paris, France

Died January 1, 1972, Paris, France

Noted French entertainer, star of early movie musicals in U.S. Long, successful career in show business. Famed for jaunty air and French charm; straw hat became trademark. Began singing in Paris as youth in second-rate cafes around 1900. Worked up to 1909 appearance in FOLIES BERGERE; then had broad comic style. Joined Mistinguette to form dance team 1909-13, became popular in Paris. Military service, World War I; wounded and in prison camp. Resumed career, worked up to good club bookings and stage revue roles. Developed into sophisticated and charming entertainer, by end of 20s one of France's most popular. Appeared with British bandleader Jack Hylton in Paris 1930. Burst upon American scene in 1929, starring in two movie musicals INNOCENTS OF PARIS and THE LOVE PARADE. Handsome, personable, popular in U.S. during early 30s as more movie musicals followed. Associated with songs Louise and Mimi particularly. By mid-30s popularity waned. In late 30s back in France for club and movie work. During World War II in seclusion; at one time rumored killed. After war, revived career in France, returned to U.S. in 1947, performed in clubs and concerts. Career boosted by 1958 movie GIGI; more movies and frequent TV spots followed. In 60s, concert tours in U.S. and Europe. Later years inactive.

316. CHRISTIAN, CHARLIE 9

Born c. 1916-19, Dallas, Texas
Died March 2, 1942, New York, N.Y.

Great jazz guitarist, pioneer in emergence of guitar as solo instrument and in use of electrical amplification. Also pioneer in development of modern jazz. Recognized by top jazzmen as major talent, career cut short by early death from tuberculosis. Grew up in Oklahoma, learned guitar as youngster, by 1934 was playing professionally in southwest. Later worked up to northwest, played also in Minneapolis and with Jeter-Pillars band in St. Louis. In 1939 jazz critic John Hammond heard about Christian, stopped at Oklahoma City to hear him, urged Benny Goodman to hire him. Christian joined Goodman in August 1939. Benny immediately impressed, using Christian to build his Quintet to Sextet. Record sessions by this group among Goodman's most admired, sparked by Christian's fresh guitar—both solo ideas and chord feeding. Quickly rose to renown in jazz circles. Active in sessions at Minton's, club in Harlem managed by former bandleader Teddy Hill, who encouraged top musicians to stop in and jam. Here Christian a top attraction, and at these sessions bop was born. Christian came down with tuberculosis at peak of career, in mid-1941 entered New York sanitarium. In February 1942 caught pneumonia and died in a few weeks, a tragic loss to music.

708

vo

(SAMUEL GOLDBERG)

*Born July 26, 1912, Dorchester, Mass.
Died October 1, 1949, Los Angeles, Calif., from injuries received in plane crash*

An all-time great pop vocalist. Straight-forward style, good phrasing and intonation, a smooth and pleasant voice, easily identifiable. Logged heavy air time on top radio shows in 30s and 40s, including Hit Parade and own popular show. Career was cut short at peak by fatal plane crash. Grew up in Boston. Attended Northeastern Law School but in 1932 turned to singing. On Boston radio two years. In late 1934-early 1935 with Benny Goodman on now historic Let's Dance radio show, also recorded two numbers with him. Radio staff singer on CBS, at times had own 15-minute singing shows in mid-30s. Heavy free-lance recording with name and studio bands, sometimes without label credit. Most regular singer on Hit Parade 1936-8. On this show worked with several bands: Fred Rich, Harry Sosnik, Bob Haring, Al Goodman, Richard Himber, Peter Van Steeden, Mark Warnow, Carl Hoff. In 1938 on radio shows of Ben Bernie, Richard Himber's Melody Puzzles, American Tobacco Company show on Mutual, and a Sunday afternoon show. On Wayne King show 1940-1 and Vincent Lopez show 1940. Did memorable voice dubbing in 1937 for Jack Haley in movie WAKE UP AND LIVE. Plot centered around Haley's sensational singing voice, and Clark's voice made it credible.

In spite of heavy schedule, to this point Clark virtually unknown. Became better known in early 40s from his radio show Here's to Romance, eventually replaced by Dick Haymes in mid-1943. Military service awhile, World War II. Own show late 1945, The Contented Hour, quickly became popular. Showcased Buddy's singing, featured good big orchestra and guest stars. Sudden popularity brought highly successful series of recordings for Columbia; Linda especially big in 1947. In 1947 movie I WONDER WHO'S KISSING HER NOW, voice dubbed for Mark Stevens. Heard on soundtrack of two other movies, MELODY TIME (1948) and SONG OF SURRENDER (1949). By late 1949 Clark peaked. Radio show and records still very popular. Then tragedy. Clark passenger on small private plane returning from Stanford-Michigan football game. Plane lost altitude, crashed on Los Angeles street. Clark thrown from plane, died hours later.

328. CLARKE, KENNY d vb B
(nicknamed Klook)

Born January 9, 1914, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Foremost drummer in development of bop in early and mid-40s. Important in establishing different style of drumming to fit the new music, veering from steady four-beat rhythm to give bass drum accent off beat as well. Began professional career in early 30s, with Leroy Bradley band several years. With Roy Eldridge in 1935, then in St. Louis with Jeter Pillars band. Joined Edgar Hayes in New York 1937-8, took Scandinavian tour with him in 1938. Later in 1938 with Claude Hopkins, then 1939-40 with Teddy Hill. Part of Hill's band played Minton's club in Harlem in early 40s, with Clarke in combo. Participated in seminal jam sessions there with Charlie Christian, Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonious Monk and others that laid groundwork for bop. In next several years Clarke with Benny Carter in New York and Red Allen in Chicago. Own band in New York, then military service several years. Active from 1946 into 50s with bop combos. Recognized as a leading figure in movement. With Dizzy Gillespie for much of 1946-8, including work in Europe. Also with Tadd Dameron and Billy Eckstine, and freelance. Charter member of Modern Jazz Quartet during 1952-5. In 1956 to France, remained, worked with various jazz groups there and toured. Six-year stay at Blue Note in Paris to 1967. In late 60s and into 70s, co-leader of big band with pianist Francy Boland.

334. CLINTON, LARRY .t tb cl ar cm B*Born August 17, 1909, Brooklyn, N.Y.*

Outstanding bandleader-arranger-composer of 30s and 40s. First fame as excellent arranger, then as composer of swing music, finally as leader of a top band of late 30s. Noted for ability to adapt classics to popular music as ballads or swing numbers. Band boasted impeccable musicianship, with polished swing style and delicately shaded treatment of ballads. Early job with Ferde Grofe briefly in 1932 as sideman-arranger. Later in 30s arranged for Isham Jones, Glen Gray, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Claude Hopkins, Bunny Berigan. Composed numbers, mostly swing, featured by many bands: Satan Takes a Holiday; Whoa Babe; My Silent Mood; Midnight in a Madhouse; Boogie Woogie Blues; Strictly for the Persians; Study in Brown (theme); Study in Surrealism; Study in Green; Study in Blue; Study in Red; An Empty Ballroom; Calypso Melody; Abba Dabba; The Campbells Are Swinging; Molasses, Molasses; Bolero in Blue; Dodging the Dean; The Big Dipper; Dusk in Upper Sandusky; Shades of Hades; Shalimar; Dreamy Melody. Several compositions made Hit Parade: The Dipsy Doodle (1937), My Reverie (1938), It Took a Million Years and Our Love (1939). Arrangements on classics Martha and I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls became famous.

In late 1937 Clinton formed own big band, began heavy recording for Victor. Outstanding vocalist in Bea Wain, key figure in band's rise. Used several theme songs; The Dipsy Doodle most famous. Good jazzmen featured: Tony Zimmers, Babe Russin, Toots Mondello, Skeets Herfurt, Wolfe Tannenbaum (later Tayne). Later outstanding vocalist Terry Allen, plus capable Peggy Mann and Ford Leary (jazz and novelty numbers). In early 1939 Clinton's band helped make hit of Deep Purple, rose in band polls. Records well received. Maintained popularity in 1940-1, broke up in late 1941 as Clinton entered military service. In late 40s Clinton again led band but never regained former popularity. In 50s owned publishing and record business, served awhile as A&R man for Kapp Records.

341. COHAN, GEORGE M. . cm lyr vo*Born July 3, 1878, Providence, R.I.Died November 5, 1942, New York, N.Y.*

An all-time great of Broadway stage as performer-composer-lyricist-librettist-director-producer. Pioneer in veering from European operettas which American writers copied. Shows brash and energetic, American to the core, with unabashed nostalgic and patriotic songs. Dynamic stage performer with distinctive style of dancing, singing and acting. Leading songs endured through the years: Give My Regards to Broadway, The Yankee Doodle Boy, You're a Grand Old Flag, Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway, Harrigan, Mary's a Grand Old Name. Wrote greatest of all war songs during World War I, Over There, for which received Congressional Medal. First professional appearance as Little Georgie, child violinist, at Keith's Bijou in Boston. First dramatic role in show DANIEL BOONE. Starred in PECK'S BAD BOY in 1890. Parents Jeremiah (Jerry) and Helen (Nellie), vaudeville performers. He and sister Josephine (Josie) joined them to form act known as The Four Cohans. Played vaudeville and became top act, aided by George's material, performance, business ability. Later George's wife Ethel Levey joined act. George also wrote material for other vaudeville acts, over 150 sketches by age 21. First Broadway shows short-lived: THE GOVERNOR'S SON (1901), RUNNING FOR OFFICE (1903), LITTLE JOHNNY JONES (1904; unsuccessful despite good score). Subsequent shows ran longer, but early shows with best songs had surprisingly modest runs. Nonetheless, Cohan starred in and produced steady string of shows, built reputation. 15-year partner, producer Sam Harris, helped put on these shows. Josie left Four Cohans at intervals later. Other three Cohans last appeared together in Broadway show THE LITTLE MILLIONAIRE (1911). George performed alone in other musicals and dramas. In later years turned mostly to writing and producing. By late 20s semi-active in theatre, returned in 1937 to star in musical I'D RATHER BE RIGHT with considerable success. Cohan appeared in movies THE PHANTOM PRESIDENT (1932) and GAMBLING (1934). In 1940 his old play adapted for Judy Garland movie LITTLE NELLIE KELLY. On radio occasionally during 30s. Outstanding movie YANKEE DOODLE DANDY (1942) based on Cohan's life, with James Cagney winning Academy Award for portrayal of Cohan. 1968 Broadway musical GEORGE M! also based on Cohan's life, with Joel Grey portraying Cohan. Both productions featured many Cohan songs.

During career Cohan in Broadway musicals THE GOVERNOR'S SON (1901); RUNNING FOR OFFICE (1903); LITTLE JOHNNY JONES (1904); GEORGE WASHINGTON, JR. (1906); THE HONEYMOONERS (1907); THE YANKEE PRINCE (1908); THE LITTLE MILLIONAIRE (1911); HELLO, BROADWAY! (1915); THE MERRY MALONES (1927); I'D RATHER BE RIGHT (1937). Associated with other musicals as writer or producer: FORTY-FIVE MINUTES FROM BROADWAY (1906); THE TALK OF NEW YORK (1907); FIFTY MILES FROM BOSTON (1908); THE AMERICAN IDEA (1908); THE MAN WHO OWNS BROADWAY (1909); THE COHAN REVUE OF 1916; THE COHAN REVUE OF 1918; THE ROYAL VAGABOND (1919); THE VOICE

OF MCCONNELL (1919); LITTLE NELLIE KELLY (1922); THE RISE OF ROSIE O'REILLY (1924); BILLIE (1928).

Cohan associated with nonmusical Broadway plays: BROADWAY JONES (1912; actor); SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE (1913; author); GENIUS AND THE CROWD (1920; producer); THE MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD (1920; actor); THE TAVERN (1921; actor); THE SONG AND DANCE MAN (1923; actor); AMERICAN BORN (1925; actor); GAMBLING (1929; actor); PIGEONS AND PEOPLE (1933; author, actor); AH! WILDERNESS (1933-4, long run; actor); SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE revival (1935; author, actor); FULTON OF OAK FALLS (1937; actor); RETURN OF THE VAGABOND (1940; actor, last stage appearance).

(NATHANIEL ADAMS COLES)

Born March 17, 1917, Montgomery, Ala.

Died February 15, 1965, Santa Monica, Calif.

A leading pop singer of 40s and 50s. Warm ballad style, smooth and melodious. First a talented jazz pianist of early modern school. Led King Cole Trio, dropped it for highly successful singing career. Grew up in Chicago; brothers Eddie, Fred and Isaac professional musicians. Led own band in Chicago in 1934. Toured with "Shuffle Along" road show, settled in California. Played clubs as piano soloist. In 1939 formed Trio, beginning long association with capable guitarist Oscar Moore. Wesley Prince on bass, replaced several years later by Johnny Miller. Cole played in Earl Hines style with modern chord structure. He and Moore integrated playing neatly, fashioned tasteful sound. Trio early featured instrumentals and unison singing, with occasional Nat vocal. In later years
